Battle Of Cassino

Bitter fighting was raging in this section of Italy—the Cassino area—now reported surrounded by Allied forces. Boxes indicate famous landmarks. White arrows show how American troops, seeking to drive up the Liri Valley to Rome, are pressing the Germans in the outskirts of the city. Heavy fighting is also raging in the mountains to the northwest.

Warships Shell Jap Home Isle

By NORMAN BELL

ABOARD U. S. DESTROYER IN NORTH PACIFIC, Feb. 4 (Delayed) (AP)—United States warships bombarded Japan at home for the first time today and caught the enemy by surprise.

A bombardment lasting about 20 minutes battered the harbor and land installations of Kurabu Point on the southern tip of Paramushiro island. This island is 1280 miles from Tokyo, but is geographically a part of Japan proper.

Enemy gunners, either surprised or attempting to put out star shells which preceded the heavy blasting, fired into the air when the attack first started. Then, giving evidence of becoming more rattled, they fired along their own beaches and at the Pacific ocean and sea of Ohkotsk.

No ship of the attacking force, which steamed under bright moonlight within five miles of shore batteries, was hit.

Paramushiro is the northernmost of the home islands of Japan.

It is about 790 miles southwest of the American base on Attu island in the Aleutians and more than 1600 miles from Dutch Harbor, the Navy's northernmost big Pacific base.

PRAISED BY ADMIRALS

(The Navy Department, in a communique issued in Washington, confirmed the raid and added that all vessels and planes escaped undamaged.)

The task force was commanded by Rear Admr. Wilder D. Baker, operating under Vice Admr. Frank Jack Fletcher, commander of the North Pacific fleet. Both messaged ships and crews following the attack congratulating them on being the first to bombard Japanese home territory.

The Army also was represented aboard Admr. Baker's flagship by Maj.-Gen. Davenport Johnson, commander 11th Air Force, and Brig.-Gen. E. D. Post, chief of staff to Lieut.-Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the Alas-

JAPAN — American naval forces have bombarded the Japanese island of Paramushiro.

21 Isles In Hands Of Yanks

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Feb. 7 (AP)—American troops and marines have tucked all but a small part of Kwajalein atoll under the United States flag after capturing three more islands from resisting Japanese and occupying other islands which were not defended.

The occupation of the Marshall Islands atoll, once a formidable Japanese plane and naval base, "is nearly complete," Adm. Nimitz said yesterday. He announced that Gugegwe, Bigej and Eller islands had been captured after "moderate resistance."

While the invaders were driving the Japanese off the islands of the atoll, Navy Seabees were pushing their huge bulldozers over the rubble of what had been a huge airfield and installations on Roi and the Namur islands. A powerful American airdrome and naval base were taking shape on these islands. On Kwajalein island engineers were putting the airfield into shape.

"All the Marshalls and the Eastern Carolines have been brought within range of our bombers including Truk, which is on the fringe of our bombers' new effective striking radius," said Maj.-Gen. Willis Hale, commander of the 7th Army Air Force.

Truk, with its big naval base, is believed to be Japan's strongest Central Pacific bastion and is 938 airline miles from Kwajalein.

Jap Fuel Base Pounded Again

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 7 (AP)—A 167-ton bombing of Japan's supply and refueling base at Cape Hoskins, New Britain, was reported today by Gen. MacArthur in a communique which stressed the enemy's deteriorating air protection for its once-formidable Rabaul base.

Heavy bombers with a fighter escort planted the heavy bomb load on the airdrome and dispersal areas, causing large fires.

Medium bombers in their third straight raid on Wewak, New Guinea, left a 3000-ton ship in flames and raked barges, gun emplacements, fuel dumps and floatplanes. Enemy shipping at Hansa Bay also was hit by medium bombers which sank a 1000-ton freighter, a smaller cargo ship and nine barges.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Feb. 7 (AP)—Marine trainees at Bucknell University wanted a mascot.

38 Dead in Two Helsinki Raids

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 7 (AP)—Fires still are burning in Helsinki at noon today from two Russian bombings Sunday which hit 200 buildings and killed 38 persons, the Finnish legation here said.

The attacking bombers dropped mine bombs and incendiaries.

(Advices reaching London said telephone communication between Helsinki and Stockholm had been cut again today, suggesting the possibility of a third raid in what apparently is a concentrated effort to drive Finland out of the War.)

Thousands of women, children and elderly persons began to evacuate Helsinki. The refugees were reported making use of every available means of travel.

Yanks Repulse New Nazi Blow, Regain Ground

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Feb. 7 (AP)—American troops in the Anzio beachhead have repulsed a strong new German attack which broke through the Allied perimeter, three miles west of the vital road and rail hub of Cisterna, and have restored their original positions, it was announced today.

Cisterna is astride the Appian Way and an electrified railway 26 miles southeast of Rome and about 10 miles east of Carroceto (Aprilia), where previous German counter-blows were blunted.

The Germans began the new assault Saturday evening with infantry, tanks and artillery.

CLAIM 1000 CAPTURED

The Nazi-controlled Rome radio said today some Allied troops in the Carroceto area below the capital had been surrounded and wiped out and that more than 1000 prisoners had been taken. The claim was unconfirmed by any Allied source.

(The broadcast also said that German planes had destroyed a tank column in the Pontine marsh area, that Allied infiltration in the Cisterna area of the beachhead had been eliminated and that the Allies had been driven out of the eastern part of Cassino.)

In the raging battle for Cassino, American troops made new advances north and west of the town, a communique said.

Eighth Army troops also sprang forward on the Adriatic front, seizing Pizzoferato and Montenerodomo in the Lanciano area.

YANKS RECOVER GROUND

A Sunday dispatch from Daniel De Luce, Associated Press correspondent on the beachhead, said Americans were driven back about 500 yards Saturday night but recovered the ground.

The Nazis, reinforced along the beachhead perimeter to at least four divisions and an SS brigade by the arrival of the 715th Infantry division from Southern France, made lesser attacks along the line.

Grim house-to-house fighting continued in Cassino but the Americans battled up Mt. Cassino just west of the town, already nearly encircled, and reached a point within a few hundred yards of the famous Benedictine Monastery at the crest.

BEACHHEAD YANKS FACE TOUGH GOING

By DANIEL DELUCE

Representing Combined American Press

AT THE FIFTH ARMY BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF ROME, Feb. 6 (Delayed)—Events of the past week appear to have persuaded Gen. Wilson's command to present a somber picture of the Anzio operation.

The bare facts are these:

The latest aggressive effort by the Allied force to expand the beachhead in an important strategic direction occurred six to seven days ago and did not reach Cisterna.

Operating with overland communications that are shorter and faster than the Allies' amphibious route, regardless of sporadic bomb damage, the Germans have had 15 days to prepare a counteroffensive.

The enemy failed to annihilate a British unit which was cut off for a short time in the north of Carroceto Thursday night and fought its way back safely.

Since last Monday's thrust toward Cisterna Allied troops have been engaged in patrol fighting.

Increasing quantities of tanks and guns have been committed to this front in recent days by the German high command.

Each local attack that has been launched by the Germans was a feeling-out blow for a real test of the beachhead's security which may be expected in the future.

The beachhead bristles with men and guns. It is not, however, a natural fortress. Its terrain is low rolling hills and a cultivated plain. It still is about eight miles deep and 14 miles wide, as officially announced early last week. The beachhead's security depends on its men and guns.

Reds Mopping Up in Nazis' Worst Defeat

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Russian army is less than 45 miles at some points from the lines where Hitler launched his invasion of the Soviet Union, and all along the 1200-mile front the German army is suffering some of the war's worst defeats, field dispatches said today.

Gaining the upper hand along the lower reaches of the Dnieper river with advances up to 40 miles through a 100-mile-wide gap, Gen. Malinovsky's third Ukrainian army ruthlessly went about the job of destroying five trapped German divisions (normally 75,000 men) in the Nikopol sector.

Meanwhile, 150 miles to the north, more Nazi corpses littered the thawing Ukrainian earth as Gen. Vatutin's and Gen. Konev's armies drew ever tighter a ring of death around the remnants of 10 divisions near Cherkasy.

(Russian troops have penetrated the eastern suburbs of Narva, fortress town eight miles inside Estonia, a Reuter's dispatch to London from Moscow said today.)

The loss of Nikopol, which reportedly has been furnishing German industries the major amount of manganese used in the Reich's production of war equipment, probably would be the hardest industrial blow to be suffered by the Germans during the entire Russian offensive.

The Nazis appeared to have lost Krivoi Rog along with Nikopol.

Many days of continuous rain have melted the Ukraine's snows, and roads are almost unusable. Every stream, creek and river is in flood, and airfields are soft with clinging mud.

RAF Zooms Out On New Raids

LONDON, Feb. 7 (INS)—Further air blows against Hitler's often pummeled European fortress were indicated today when radio stations in Berlin and Paris shut down. The authoritive British Press Ass'n said RAF heavy bombers crossed the southeast coast last night in the direction of France.

RUSSIA—New Red drive rips ahead 37 miles between Krivoi Rog and Nikopol, cutting rail escape for 75,000 German troops. Meanwhile, the Red offensives continued to gain in Poland and the 100,000 Nazis trapped above Smela were gradually being whittled down.

Dream of U. S. Drear Pastime

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—(By Transport Mail)—We stood at a rain-swept crossroad. A column of engineers—reefered, helmeted and mittened—swung past to the platoon sergeant's chant. ("ugh . . . tuh . . . t'ree . . . fo.") It was a monotonous singsong.

The men keep chins and eyes rigidly front, their rifles are at the 45-degree angle of correct slant, their leggined ankles stepping a single cadence. "UG'H . . . TUH . . . TREE . . . FO'!" They had marched thus, like mechanical men, at strict "attention" for 10 miles—a disciplinary tone-up.

To this observer it seemed a silly waste of man energy. Yet, IS it?

There's a reason! It is not merely to polish the already slick perfection of these post-grads of the U. S. camps (censored). It is to keep them mentally and physically occupied to the last ounce and inch of their beings during 10 hours a day and bring 'em back weary. (That's one reason.) By comparison actual combat becomes a welcome prospect—ask any man in England's big schoolroom and he'll answer "Hell, yes!"

Morale Building

Sounds silly to call this "morale building," but it amounts to just that. It's the Army's system of spiritual stiffening with no time to droop. "If a man is tired enough" explained a colonel today, "his morale will take care of itself. He's hungry, so he eats—even if he doesn't choose the food. He's tired, so he sleeps—even if he'd like to brood on his troubles, of which God knows, we've all got plenty."

A brutal system? Of course it is! But it's a brutal war, and needs brutal methods to whip the world's most brutal enemy.

Despite its many fussy furbelows and old maid quirks—some of which are undoubtedly carried to excess, the U. S. field command known that it is dangerous for officer or man to dream (brood) too much—for the inactive mind often nurses exaggeration, or so they say.

Talk of Home

And what sort of "little dreams"? The sort described to me by Pfc. Fred G. Wagner of 109 Orange st., Roslindale, who told how after the first darkness following "tattoo" he thinks drowsily "of his mother, Louise, spreading the family table . . . the walls of the kitchen as they come aglow from the stove . . . the leaning guns and fishing tackle which he stored in the closet of his room . . . the chintz curtains over windows where an overhanging maple rustles with melody in a wind of an old summer." And then he surrenders to his clouded senses. He sleeps! And presently it is another day, and another. It is better so!

What do these men think—when they have time to think? I've tried to probe them to find what the huge, all embodying noun "Home" means, and it narrows down to parents, a job, a congenial cafe in which to converse with friends, the vision of a certain girl, and kindred et ceteras, each according to his likes and capacities. Like this:

Staff Sergt. Nicholas J. Falciene of 139 Dover st., Boston, thinks of his wife, Josephine (Ballatin) and of his friends in the "Democratic Club" (Paul C. Ballette and Tony Mazzara) and of Father Salvatore Screrd of Our Lady of Pompeii.

Pvt. James E. Flannagan of 58 Buckingham rd., Wollaston, talked (1) of wife Geraldine (White) and Mother Mary, (2) how he'd caught for the "Gov. Hurley" ballteam of Dedham, and (3) his job under Pete Dunn at the Bond Clothing Co.

Pvt. Ferdinand J. Loblunde of 75 Brighton st., Boston, had no mind for much else, but the baritone he sang in such operations as Pinafore at Peabody House, and his New Hampshire appearance

Governor Hugs Mystery of His Senate Choice

Gov. Saltonstall today hugged closely the Big Secret, but to fend off the maneuvers of inquisitive reporters he first called in and then sheltered himself beneath the wing of a veteran counselor.

The Big Secret, of course, was the Governor's projected appointment of a United States Senator to fill the seat vacaed by Maj. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., when he suddenly re-entered the Army last week.

Saturday the Governor had hugged the Big Secret in the rural setting of a windswept meadow on his Dover farm, but today the Big Secret was hugged in the more formal surroundings of the gubernattorial suite.

The Governor had had a big secret disclosed to him over the week-end, and it was that he doesn't have to submit his appointment to the executive council.

This, the Governor admitted, had been told him by Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, whom he called in hastily as the reporters were on their way to the suite.

So—when he was asked if he wouldn't disclose who will be named to the Senate seat—Saltonstall said smilingly:

"I hope to reach a decision this week on that appointment."

When he asked if he would announce the name first to the newspapermen or to the Senate, he pointed to the veteran Cook and said:

"I cannot answer that, as I am in the hands of my counsel, Mr. Cook."

He had no appointment today with Sinclair Weeks, who has been mentioned for the post, the Governor said, but when asked if he intended conferring with Republican leaders before making his choice, he only smiled and said nothing at all.

He was still hugging the Big Secret to his bosom when the reporters left, and while not a few of the reporters like the Governor, there were some who hoped it would bite him.

Told Death Near, But Lived 80 Years

NORTHAMPTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—After nine months' service in the Civil War, Alphonso Witherell was told he had only a short time to live. He died today at the age of 100.

The last of Northampton's Civil War veterans, he enlisted at 19 and served with the 52d Regiment. In later years he was a grocer and a letter carrier.

How Does It Feel to Be Wounded?

How does it feel to be wounded? What are a soldier's feelings about being wounded after he's recovered and been returned to duty?

These are other similar questions will be answered by Austen Lake, Boston American war correspondent in England with your Berlin-bound men, in another of his brilliant articles appearing exclusively in Tuesday's American.

Read Tuesday's Boston American for this enlightening chapter along with messages by boys from Winthrop, Arlington, Brockton, Somerville, Woburn, Lowell, Bridgewater, West Roxbury, Jamaica Plain, Auburn, Stoughton, Lynn, Everett, Haverhill, Taunton, Saugus, and many other New England cities and towns.

$30,000 FIRE RAZES SCHOOL IN WELLESLEY

Only a month before the annual town meeting, at which the recommendation for a new school to cost $1,119,785 will be considered, fire swept today through the Alice L. Phillips Junior High School, Wellesley, causing $30,000 damage.

The fire, starting in the basement of one of the two buildings and spreading through the three floors, abruptly halted school sessions for 739 pupils.

As a result, a decision on the new school construction, planned for the postwar period, may be hastened.

Firemen from Newton, Natick and Needham aided in battling the blaze with 16 of the town's auxiliary fire-fighters.

Fire Chief Thomas Slamin asked the state fire marshal's office to investigate.

School Supt. Arthur E. Pierce ordered a meeting to determine what accommodations could be made for the students. With scarcely an empty seat in other Wellesley schools, it was believed nearby communities would be asked to aid.

Japs World's Outlaws, Must Pay, Warns Grew

In the following exclusive article Joseph C. Grew, former United States ambassador to Japan, predicts that America's answer to the murder, torture and starvation of American war prisoners by the Japanese will be to fight this war with grimmer resolve than ever before.

By JOSEPH C. GREW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (INS)—War at best is not a pretty business, but the disclosures of the savage and utterly diabolic atrocities of the Japanese military in the Philippines and elsewhere tell a story of what might well be regarded as an all-time record in human villainy.

This insensate cruelty by a soldiery which we believed still retained some spark, however faint, of the former chivalry of the Bushido code, has shown us beyond any shadow of doubt the sort of bestial enemy we are fighting today.

BEYOND THE PALE

Civilization means reclamation from savagery. By these acts the Japanese military have incontestably placed themselves beyond the pale of civilized nations, have not only been inexpressibly shocked but, what is more, they have been aroused to an indescribable degree everywhere.

That means just one thing, namely that we are going to fight this war with grimmer resolve than ever before. The sky-rocketing of the war bond sale shows that. If any of us needed a stimulus, we have it and we shall still have it when the time comes for the punishment of the guilty.

It may be of significant interest that in 1938 when our embassy in Tokyo submitted to the Japanese foreign office photographs of Japanese atrocities in Nanking and asked that these photographs be referred to the Japanese Ministry of War as evidence of the behavior of Japanese troops in China at that time, the only response received from the war ministry was one of vituperation for our interference in Japanese affairs.

CAN ONLY GUESS

Many people have asked me what will be the reaction in Japan to these disclosures. As to that reaction, we can only guess; we cannot know. Very few of the Japanese people will be allowed to know of these atrocity reports. The public at large is permitted no access to such information, and it will be carefully withheld from them.

As for the higher-ups, the military and other leaders, I can only say that no Japanese likes to be regarded abroad as uncivilized. Whether or not those leaders are capable of a sense of shame, they at least are capable of a desire to improve the record, and I profoundly hope that this desire will result in any eventual amelioration of the conditions under which prisoners of war and interned enemy civilians are held. I think it will.

Dying Boy's Letter Gets by Jap Censor

By RAY RICHARDS
Boston American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—A boy named Don, survivor of Bataan's "March of Death," wrote to his mother in California a letter which a Japanese prison camp censor in China passed because of inability, apparently, to read the revelation of horror between the lines.

The boy named Don was one of six sons the mother had given to the armed services at the start of the war.

His letter was written in mid-1943, but it was received by the mother at Berkeley only a few weeks ago.

With the boy's full name withheld at the mother's request, the letter has just been released by Rep. John M. Costello of California, who received it from Samuel Levy of Berkeley, who pleaded:

"Isn't there something we can do for our people in the hands of the Japanese?"

Costello said:

"I give the letter to the public to help in keeping American determination firm to leave nothing untried for the relief and rescue of Americans in enemy captivity. The letter needs no comment."

Tells of Wounded and Dying

It follows:

"How glad I am to get word to you, Mom—days are endless here. "I got your box. A little broken up, but, oh, how good it was! And your letter. Write often, Mom. You don't understand.

"My pal, Dan Scott, from Vine or Prune st, in Berkeley, is very sick and I give him everything I can possibly do without, which isn't very much now.

"I still have your little Bible, Mom, and I take care of him—shake out his straw mat and make him comfortable as I can. He is going to die, Mom.

"Frank is here, too. He has one leg off, but don't worry, Mom. I take good care of him, too, every minute I don't work. He seems pretty good the last few days.

"Don't ever think death is too bad, Mom. Sometimes it is heaven. "We are treated all right. We work hard if we are able, but in all it isn't too bad.

Asks Mother's Prayers for All

"I can't write again for a long time, but I will be O. K. You write to me often, won't you? I will live for those letters.

"May God take care of you, dear. With all six of us in the service I can imagine how lost you are. You have your church to go to —don't forget to pray for every one of us.

"Taxes are due on my house, aren't they? But I know somehow they will be paid.

"I can't worry about anything right now. I must keep going on so I can look after these kids who can't take care of themselves.

"If you could get word to Dan's dad, do it. He sure loves his father, but doesn't want his mother to know how sick he is. He's a swell boy, mother. I know only too well that my best friend on Bataan and here also will soon be gone.

"Again pray for all of us. I love you so much, mother, and will see you again if God is willing."

Representative Costello said:

"Don will not see his mother again. A few weeks after this letter reached her, the International Red Cross received word that Don himself had died."

Ad Men's Post Joins Prisoner Swap Plan

Edward Keefe, Boston advertising executive and commander of Crosscup-Pishon Post of the American Legion, today joined Boston leaders campaigning for an international commission to bring release of American civilians held prisoner by Japan.

"An international commission headed by former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to negotiate with Japan through some neutral country is an excellent idea," Keefe said.

"Such a commission, I am sure, would have the backing not only of every veteran but every citizen in the country.

"Soviet Russia as a neutral and friendly nation to Japan well might be the intermediary in view of the assistance we have given her against Germany.

"Such a commission should be formed immediately and utilize every possible means to effect further prisoner exchanges with Japan."

At the same time, unanimous endorsement of the campaign was given by the Regimental Council of the 101st Infantry Veterans' Association.

The Council action followed an address by its president, Albert F. Sears, in which he pledged the organization to vigorous support of the move.

"This is one of the finest things I've heard of," Sears said. "The commission should be organized promptly and given all power and authority it needs to follow every possibility to get American citizens home."

Action of the veterans followed similar support for a commission voiced by Col. William E. Blake, head of the Veterans' Bureau here, who urged all possible speed in formation of the commission.

Japs Handed U. S. Protest

LONDON, Feb. 7 (INS)—DNB, the German agency, said today the Swiss minister in Tokyo had handed the American protest over Japanese maltreatment of U. S. prisoners after the fall of Corregidor to Mamoru Shigemitsu, the Jap foreign minister.

DNB, quoting a Japanese spokesman, said that Tokyo would reply "in due course."

The spokesman was quoted as saying that British and American soldiers had committed "barbaric deeds" against Japanese prisoners and charged some had been "murdered" in California. He declared 18,000 Japanese internees in the United States were being detained under "terrible conditions."

Mrs. Agnes Ahern Dies in Medford

Mrs. Agnes C. Ahern, mother of three Boston policemen and for 64 years a resident of Charlestown, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas F. Costello, Boston ave., Medford.

Burial will take place Wednesday, with a solemn high mass at 9 a. m. at St. Raphael's Church, Medford.

Mrs. Ahern was the mother of Police Lieut. John Ahern, stationed downtown; Patrolman Arthur J. Ahern, stationed at North End, and Patrolman Edwin C. Ahern of a South End station.

Besides, she is survived by 19 grandchildren and six other children: Mrs. Mary L. Goff, Medford; Mrs. Joseph Powers, Melrose; Mrs. Henry Briand, Charlestown; Mrs. Frank Amato, Melrose; William J. Ahern, Charlestown, and David Ahern, Charlestown.

2 Attempted Attacks Net Him 10 Years

Two 10-15-year concurrent state prison terms were imposed on Caruso A. Vigliorolo, 20, Thorndike st., Arlington, when he pleaded guilty today before Judge Good in Middlesex Superior Court to charges of attempted criminal attack on two Framingham women when he ran berserk through the town's streets Jan. 15. Additional counts of assault and battery on the women were filed.

Dist. Atty. Bradford demanded heavy sentence because "the defendant's acts were so violent they might easily have resulted in murder."

Ill Wind Blew Him No Good!

CAPE GLOUCESTER, New Britain, Jan. 12 (delayed) (AP)—Out on a jungle patrol, Marine Sergt. Leo P. Parenteau, 551 Sommerville st., Manchester, N. H., spotted a Japanese soldier hidden in the grass below him on a mountain trail.

The glimpse of that Jap in ambush was a beautiful sight to Sergt. Parenteau.

For Sergt. Parenteau has served through Guadalcanal and Cape Gloucester.

He has been sniped at, dodged mortar shells, has been a target for machine guns and has endured bombardments by big naval guns.

And so far, Sergt. Parenteau hadn't fired a single shot at the enemy—namely because he always was on reconnaissance patrol.

What rankled especially was that he was an expert rifleman, nicknamed "Peepsight."

But he saw his chance today. This time he was on a combat patrol and could shoot.

So Sergt. Parenteau set out to stalk the Jap sniper. At last he got close enough for a perfect shot. Then the wind shifted.

The Jap had been dead three days.

"Things like that," said Sergt. Parenteau, "make a man want to go far off by himself and raise chickens."

Pick List Eligible For Oscar

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7 (AP) — Nominations of motion pictures and individuals for 1943 "Oscar" awards in the 16th annual competition were announced last night by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Winners of the famous gold trophies will be chosen by vote of approximaitely 10,000 film industry workers. Walter Wanger, Academy president, said ballots will be mailed Feb. 11 and winners will be announced March 2.

MICHAEL BRUGLIERA AND MAYBRITT JOHNSON
She'll Wear Film Star's $4000 Gown for Wedding

Ginger's Gown Hers, Waits Fiance Now

Blonde, dimpled, 18-year-old Maybritt Johnson, the Brockton shoe factory clerk chosen to wear Ginger Rogers' $4000 "Lady in the Dark" wedding gown for her St. Valentine's Day marriage to her school chum, admitted today she has tremendous faith in the altruism of the U. S. Navy.

She disclosed that her fiance, Michael F. Brugliera, 20, radioman 3/c, USN, hasn't yet received leave to get married. Everything happened so suddenly, she explained, he hasn't had time yet to ask for leave, but he's going to today and Maybritt "just knows" the Navy will approve.

Miss Johnson was selected from 150 aspirants to wear the famous gown by the Rev. Oswald A. Blumit, head of the Fellowship Center for Servicemen in Hawes st., Brookline, the former Wightman mansion, where the wedding will be held.

As the "Cinderella bride" in the famous wedding gown, Miss Johnson will be attended by Phyllis Brooks, the screen star, as brides maid, and 10 Powers models. The ceremony and reception, the wedding ring, flowers and honeymoon expenses all are part of the prize.

"This couple was the most deserving of any who applied," Dr. Blumit said, "and she'll look so pretty in that wedding gown."

The thrilled bride-to-be said she talked for a half hour by telephone with Dr. Blumit.

"You see, it was terribly important that he choose us, because, if he hadn't, Michael and I had decided that we wouldn't get married until after the war," she said.

Boy Scouts Open Birthday Week

The Boy Scouts of America, 34 years old this week, today began a week-long observance of their birthday anniversary.

In Chelsea, Scouts today were scheduled to take over municipal offices for the day. Tonight, Scout leaders will hold a dinner at Teachers College to push their campaign to establish 1000 more New England units during 1944.

Wednesday's highlight is a reception which Gov. Saltonstall will hold for 25 new Eagle Scouts. Other Wednesday events include a demonstration of scouting in the Roslindale-West Roxbury area; a district court of honor in Jamaica Plain. a district exposition in Chelsea; an anniversary court of honor in Roxbury, and special radio broadcasts.

Two More Cabbies Beaten, One Robbed

Two taxi drivers were attacked and one robbed today. Charles R. Moore, 50, of Clive st., Jamaica Plain, had driven three men from Roxbury to Calvary rd., West Roxbury, when one threatened him with a revolver, another took $35 in cash and then knocked him down and stole his taxi.

Andrew Malmquest, 42, of Bridge st., Dedham, was hit on the head by a passenger who had just paid his fare. No robbery attempt was made.

Malden Factory Hit By 2-Alarm Blaze

Speedy discovery and quick work by firemen today was credited with saving a mattress factory, an upholstery shop and a funeral parlor during a two-alarm blaze in a two-story block on Ferry st., Malden.

Flames had burst through the basement when firemen arrived. Damaged was the Publix Mattress Co., the upholstery shop of Israel Gurman and the undertaking parlor of Morris Schwartz.

Less Essential Hub Firms Face 48-Hour Order

The War Manpower Commission today began a study of labor needs in Boston's less essential businesses after ordering a 48-hour week for "all essential and locally needed" industries in 43 cities and towns of Greater Boston.

Extension of the longer work week will be ordered for all industry if the study reveals such a need, and if manpower shortages do not improve within the next 60 days, according to Leon J. Kowal, Boston War Manpower Commission director.

In announcing that the Greater Boston labor market must go on a minimum wartime work week of 48 hours, Kowal disclosed that Joseph A. Smith, regional director of the WMC, had given industry until March 6 to comply. The longer week was recommended by WMC's Labor-Management Committee for this area.

30,000 AFFECTED

Approximately 85 per cent of the essential war industries here already are observing a 48-hour week, but it was estimated that at least 30,000 workers now on a 40-hour basis would be stepped up into longer hours.

Henry J. Nichols Leon J. Kowal

Affected are all war plants and such designated vital civilian activities as laundries, restaurants, cleaning establishments, coal and oil distribution, garbage and rubbish collection and clay and brick manufacturing.

Meanwhile, Mayor Tobin commented that Boston war plants are meeting schedules, while Henry J. Nichols, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, stated he did not believe the move for a 48-hour week was necessary.

In announcing the 48-hour work week, Kowal said it had become necessary because of a sharp drop in the number of persons employed in war industries—a decrease, he added, must be halted at once if this area is to continue to produce its share of war materials.

NOT INCLUDED

He pointed out that while all "essential activities and locally needed" activities must establish a minimum wartime work week of 48 hours, these regulations do not apply to: (a) any establishment or place of employment in which less than eight workers are regularly employed; (b) any establishment or place of employment principally engaged in agriculture; (c) persons in the employ of any state or political sub-division thereof, any foreign government, legislative or judicial branch of the federal government or any instrumentality of any one of the foregoing.

Youths under the age of 16, and individuals who on account of other employment, household responsibilities o. physical limitations are not available for full-time work, are also exempted.

LISTS EXCEPTIONS

Kowal said exceptions may be granted upon application by the area manpower director in the following cases:

(a) Where a work week of 48 hours would be impracticable in view of the nature of the operations.

(b) Would not contribute to the reduction of labor requirements.

(c) Would conflict with any Federal, state or local law or regulation limiting hours of work.

Study $44,900,797 Budget in Council

A proposal to hold a series of public hearings on Mayor Tobin's 1944 municipal budget was made today as the City Council met to act on his request for appropriations totaling $44,900,797, an increase of $143,117 over last year.

The mayor's message set forth that it will cost $41,157,913.53 to operate the city, a jump of $213,911.60 over 1943, exclusive of the school committee budget, over which the mayor has no control.

The school budget last year exceeded $16,000,000. The mayor estimated county expenses at $3,742,823.93, a drop of $70,796 from 1943.

The budget, offering little hope for a cut in the $41 tax rate, showed the entire Civilian defense appropriation of $194,000 chopped off; $100,000 from the fire department; $60,000 from police; $125,000 from welfare costs; $110,000 from soldiers' relief and $75,000 from Long Island hospital.

New items included in the budget were $148,748 for construction of public ways; $125,000 for acquisition and removal of unsafe buildings; $30,800 for maintenance of a city employment office; $26,000 for Americanization; $25,000 for a veterans' reception center and $75,000 for a survey of the school system.

Slashing the budgets for essential fire, police, welfare and other services is expected to result in the submission of supplementary budgets for those departments later in the year.

The largest single increase in the group for contractural services ($430,000 increase to make the 1944 appropriation $2,921,270), the mayor said is due to a 20-cents-an-hour increase in pay granted contractors, employes by the WLB.

Bergdoll's Mother Gets Last Wish

DOWNINGTOWN, Pa., Feb. 7 (AP)—"The last and only wish" of the aged mother of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World War I draft dodger, came true yesterday.

For years the brewery fortune dowager, past 80 and failing, had said she lived only to see her son a free man again.

She saw him yesterday, three days after he wiped his slate clean.

Bergdoll, now 50, was released Thursday from the Army disciplinary barracks at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

3000 Ford Strikers Return to Jobs

EDGEWATER, N. J., Feb. 7 (AP)—Three thousand employes of the Ford Motor Co. who walked out Saturday afternoon in what a company spokesman called a "spontaneous strike," were back at work today.

The spokesman said the status of two test truck drivers, John Elvin and Neil Smith, about whom a union dispute has centered, is undetermined.

FACES NEW QUIZ IN HOTEL MURDER

CHICAGO, Feb. 7 (INS)—Authorities today said they might question Mrs. Ellen Bennett once more in the Drake hotel murder of Mrs. Adele Born Williams because of a new witness whose statement conflicted with those of Mrs. Bennett.

Mrs. Bennett, former Drake Hotel key clerk, was released when lie detector tests affirmed her story she was in her room at the hotel at the time a gunwoman fatally wounded Mrs. Williams.

Police said today, however, Mrs. Dorothy Martinsen, hotel maid, asserts she saw Mrs. Bennett leave her room on the first floor at 6:05 p. m., Jan. 19, a few minutes before the shooting.

Mrs. Bennett was wearing a Persian lamb coat and a large black hat, the maid said.

Authorities also were investigating a telephone call made from Mrs. Williams' room between 4 and 6 p. m. on the day of the murder. It was made to an obscure North Side tavern at a time Mrs. Williams and her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, presumably were at a hairdresser's.

Police theorized Mrs. Williams' assassin might already have been in the room at that time and made the call.

Hull Cottage Fire Damage Is $10,000

Damage of $10,000 was set today in the two-alarm fire in Hull which destroyed one unoccupied cottage, damaged three others, and for a time threatened the entire summer colony on Sagamore Hill.

Fire Chief Henry Farrell said the blaze which destroyed the cottage of Mrs. Mary Kelly of Larch rd., Cambridge, spread to adjoining cottages owned by Mrs. Frank Kelly of Ashmont, and Mrs. James Crowley of North Abington. Sparks later fired another cottage owned by Mrs. Annie Sweeney of Belmont.

Fairhaven Soldier Hero

"It was us or them," explained Marine Corp. Leo A. McDermott of Oak st., Fairhaven, when comrades complimented him on his heroism in defying Jap attacks to rescue a wounded machine gunner near Cape Gloucester, New Britain.

With Corp. Albert W. Wilson of Philadelphia, McDermott was moving forward when they noticed one of their machine gunners had been wounded and was exposed to enemy fire.

"As they dragged the wounded man to safety, two Japs armed with bayonets charged out of the brush toward them," said 1st Lt. C. Duncan, the commander.

McDermott sighted the Japs and warned Wilson.

"The only thing we had was a hand grenade hanging from Wilson's belt," McDermott said. "And he didn't waste it. He tossed it square between the two Japs and blasted them."

Corp. McDermott, a graduate of Fairhaven High School, is the son of former Selectman and Mrs. Thomas J. McDermott of Fairhaven.

3 N. E. Men Naval Heroes

Three New Englanders, two of them Bay Staters, have been decorated for conspicuous devotion to duty or acts of heroism in naval action against the enemy, it was announced today at First Naval District headquarters.

Frank Leo O'Brien, shipfitter third class, USNR, of Jones rd., Revere, was awarded the Navy and Marine Corps medal for bravely plunging back into the surf to the rescue of a shipmate being carried by the undertow to sea.

Herman H. Cramm, gunner's mate third class, USCGR, of New Bedford, was given the same citation for going to the rescue of survivors of the USS Plymouth, sunk in the battle of Bali Strait.

Lieut.-Comdr. George L. Phillips, USNR, a native of Holyoke and resident of Londonderry, Vt., was awarded the Navy Cross

2 Caught in Jail Break

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 7 (AP) —Joseph W. Augello, 22, of Buffalo, and Bernard Berman, 20, of the Bronx, were captured today as they attempted to board a freight train at Depew

The two men escaped from Erie County jail Friday night. They are under indictment for first degree murder in the fatal shooting December 29 of Michael Martis, a tavern manager.

Pack Wallop Spanish Onions

LONDON, Feb. 7 (INS)—At least a dozen "brick bombs" were reported today to have been found in crates of Spanish onions that arrived recently in England from Spain.

The crates were taken from stores and warehouses and deposited in parks and open fields to await the inspection of Army bomb disposal squads.

The bombs, assertedly of German origin, were found mostly in the bottom of crates bearing a Valencia postmark. They are yellow and brick-shaped, measuring six inches in length, four inches in width and four inches in thickness.

Shoes in China $1000 a Pair!

By ART COHN

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (INS)—Germany will quit by July 4 and Japan by next summer.

That is the opinion of Dr. Ping-Chuan Chen, president of Canton University and bank supervisor of China, who has just flown here from Chungking to study postwar problems.

Japan will be caught in a pincers, predicts Dr. Chuan. One prong will strike Tokyo from China and a tremendous air and sea armada will hit the Philippines from the South and Southwest Pacifics.

"The result is inevitable," he said.

China's greatest internal problem today, he says, is inflation.

"Before the war," he declares, a 100-pound sack of rice cost $10. Today it is $1000. It costs $10 to go to the movies, you cannot get breakfast for less than $25, shoes are $1000 a pair when you can get them, a pen and pencil set sells for $400 and a suit of clothes cost at least $5000—and you get only one pair of pants."

Higher Tax Fear Cuts War Work

War workers who fail to work full time because of the mistaken belief that higher bracket income taxes will soak up all the profits are only penalizing themselves and the boys on the fighting fronts.

So it was announced today by Frederick Bowes, Jr., New England regional manager of the War Production Board's "War Production Drive," who launched an educational drive throughout the area. He said he had discovered many instances where workers were staying away from their jobs in fear of going into higher tax brackets.

"A worker will be way ahead of the game because of the weekly tax credits he has been accumulating," Bowes said.

When colds strike in the home there is always added assurance when the medication is applied with the sympathetic touch that only mothers' hands possess. And mothers have their own way to treat cold's miseries. Thousands upon thousands of mothers know from long experience that one good way to relieve cold's muscular aches—loosen tight coughs and soothe congested nostrils is to use Penetro—an excellent vaporizing counter irritant. Here is modern scientific medication in a base containing old-fashioned mutton suet. Penetro works fast to bring relief. It disappears quickly when you rub it on. And above all, it won't blister or burn. It is stainless-white with an agreeable aromatic odor and is always pleasant to use. Once you try Penetro, you'll always want to keep it handy for that next cold. If not delighted—the purchase price will be refunded—25c—double supply 35c. Always demand Penetro.

Youth CALLS FOR Color

. . . lustrous, "winged" color! And if premature gray or faded hair keeps you from looking as young as you should . . . we recommend the haircoloring treatments whose quality and natural-looking results are assured by the name ROUX.

ROUX OIL SHAMPOO TINT • imparts shimmering, color-full highlights to your hair. It "tints as it cleanses"—colors every existing gray or faded strand—blends skillfully with your own natural hairshade.)

And ROUX Oil Bleach is our recommendation for you who prefer blonde hair. In one application it conditions, lightens and colortones. ROUX avoids that "brassy" look—gives you a natural-looking color.)

But whatever your coloring problem . . . rest assured that in our salon, your hair is studied, cared for by professionals . . . and colored with ROUX. Make your appointment today for your ROUX treatment. And remember:

"Haircoloring is a Youthful Idea!"

kan Department. The presence of Gen. Post came while troops of the Alaskan Department engaged in assault maneuvers which possibly will be aimed at Paramushiro.

The wild nature of the Japanese nese gunner indicated they feared an invasion was already under way. Tracer bullets fro msome of their guns spured along the shoreline, apparently aimed at shadows or imaginary landing barges.

The destroyer on which I rode as the only war correspondent accompanying the task force was skippered by Comdr. Harry Smith, former flag lieutenant to Admr. Fletcher in the Coral sea fighting and at the battle of Midway.

The planes of Commodore Leslie E. Gehres' fleet air wing four were back last night, the second consecutive night of their resumed "Tokyo Short Line Express." They hit shortly after the bombardment.

The island defenders perhaps had been watching for them instead of glancing out to sea once in awhile because alert shore watchers might easily have seen the dark silent shadows of the approaching ships without use of any detecting devices.

BLACKOUT ON ISLANDS

The island was clearly visible from the ships—its snow-covered mass rearing white, cold and lightless from the sea.

The blackout supported belief that the Japanese expected another air attack.

A division of destroyers under Comdr. Hunter Hood, who captained the destroyer Smith when it was struck on the forward deck by a flaming Japanese Zero in South Pacific action, led heavier ships of the task force into shelling position along the eastern side of Kurabu point.

The remainder of the force, led by Capt. H. L. Gearing, another of the Navy's dashing type type commanders, swung westward toward the Sea of Ohkkostk and bombarded from that side.

FIRE ON BUILDINGS, SHIP

The "open fire" order came at 2:30 a. m. by our watches, which was 9:30 p. m. Japan time.

"Here we go," said Lieut (jg.) Eli Hill of Dawson, Ga., communications and assistant gunnery officer with whom I stood on the director platform above the destroyer's bridge.

Star-shells made the snow-white shore bright and seemingly close enough to hit with a rock. Then the bombardment got under way in earnest. It was centered on buildings or other shore objects and one small merchant ship.

This vessel, clearly silhouetted against the white shore light, had a high plume of black smoke pouring from its stack. It apparently was trying desperately to move out of danger. The bombarding ships took turns banging away at it with a gun or two as they fell into position. It apparently was hit a number of times and left beached or badly crippled in the water.

LIKE OLD JULY 4TH

Guns of the ships roared with dull angry spurts of flame. The wind blew choking smoke into our faces. Red and yellow tracer shells, some in salvos of three or four or more, seemed to drift gently shoreward, streaking the night with color. The flash of enemy guns and tracer streams added to the fireworks.

Star shells floating above the sea and shore shed a glow against the background of white mountains. It was like an old-fashioned "hell-bustin'" Fourth of July.

Part of the task force I was with continued up the shore for some distance searching for other targets before turning out to sea. Behind us several fires were blazing.

One fire in particular continued to burn with what appeared to be periodic explosions of gasoline or ammunition until finally it faded below the horizon.

This fire was still in sight when heavier flashes broke the night behind us. Again we could see tracer streams of Japanese anti-aircraft fire.

It was the second section of Commodore Gehres' raiders coming over. The first I was told had hit the area about 15 minutes after the bombardment.

Every move of the task force had been exactly on schedule and after the attack was over it had seemed almost too easy.

None disagreed with the sailor who said, "Why, we ought to go ahead and take that place!"

Invasion of Kuriles Due in Spring, Say Japs

By the Associated Press

A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by Berlin speculated today that American forces might attempt a landing "in the spring" on the Kurile Islands, the guardian chain stretching northeast of the Japanese homeland.

The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi said U. S. naval units in the northern Pacific had "been reinforced lately," and the American forces include "strong formations of airborne troops."

Hub Flier Helps 'Duck' Limp Home

GUADALCANAL, Feb. 7 (AP)—Medium and heavy bombers of the 13th Army Airforce struck a double blow at Rabaul airfields Feb. 4, meeting almost no opposition. Twenty Mitchells attacked Tobera airdrome. A few minutes later, 15 Liberators scored hits at Vunakanau airfield.

The raiders knocked off five Zeros at a loss of two American fighters.

The Liberator 'Mad Duck' flown by Lieut. Edward Gertel, Grand Rapids, Mich., was brought over the target despite a balky engine.

Just as Staff Sergt. Frank Leveroni, 358 Arborway, Jamaica Plain, reported Japanese fighters in sight, the Duck's No. 3 engine quit. Lagging behind formation, the Duck deposited its bombs as gunners concentrated fire on one Zero at 600 wards and it fell apart.

The Duck limped home safely.

Tito's Forces Cut 2 Key Rail Lines

WAR WEAPON SHOW SPURS BOND SALES

Thousands jammed the First Corps Cadet Armory in Columbus ave. again today as the three-day Fourth Loan Invasion Show—an exhibition of equipment used by America's fighting men—drew to asuccessful close.

The Invasion Show, sponsored by the Security Dealers of Massachusetts, attracted a Sunday crowd of 12,000, each of whom bought a 25-cent war stamp for admission.

Police today appealed for the return of four live carfridges which were taken from one of the exhibit tables. Authorities said the ammunition was highly explosive and promised the takers would not be prosecuted.

Today, 840,000 pupils in the schools of Massachusetts will go on the firing line and urge friends, neighbors and relatives to buy bonds to the limit in order to attain the state's goal of $258,000,000 in sales to individuals by Feb. 15. The pupils are enrolled in the "Junior Minute Men."

Today and for the next three days Boston's elementary, intermediate and high school students will solicit bond buyers, and each school will be credited with the bonds sold in a city-wide competition that ties in with the "Buy a Plane" objective for schools throughout the state.

Willkie Adds Nebraska

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—The New York Times says in a special dispatch from Nebraska that Wendell L. Willkie announced he would enter the Nebraska preferential primary as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

BACK FROM HELL . . . By Burris Jenkins, Jr.

"HE DIVES IN AMONG THE DEAD BODIES... UNLIMBERS HIS CARBINE AND SQUEEZES THE TRIGGER — NOTHING HAPPENS."
"HE PULLS HIS TYPEWRITER ONTO HIS KNEES AND BEGINS: "TARAWA - NOV. 22ND..."
"THE MEN GO INTO THE WATER — SOME WITH RIFLES HELD HIGH TO SINK IN SHELL CRATERS IN THE CORAL, TO HANG ON BARBED WIRE AND GO DOWN IN THE REDDENING WATER — NOT A MAN TAKES A BACKWARD STEP..."

WALKING alone up the beach of Tarawa that third morning, Pete is feeling low—for more reasons than one . . . Moodily he picks his way through the bloated bodies of a dozen Japs and two Marines sandbagged near the water's edge when the sand in front of him starts popping with machine-gun bullets, and Marine Sergt. Pete Zurlinden of Dayton, O., dives in among the dead men without worrying about swollen, gaping mouths in eyeless faces above grotesquely twisted limbs bursting through rotten cloth and the stench which is as real and live as the maggots crawling under his face . . .

This smell—not only from dead bodies but from Jap latrines on a dilapidated bridge behind him—grows so overpowering that Pete lifts his head to be met by another burst which now thoroughly convinces him that whatever Japs are left up there in the cluster of shattered palms are bent on taking with them to their ancestors at least one of our newly established Marine Corps combat correspondents.

For, unlike most Marines, Sergt. Zurlinden's equipment includes—an 8-pound typewriter, 1000 sheets of paper, a compact news file, carbon sheets, a full map case, five dozen pencils, 12 typewriter ribbons, paper clips, sun glasses, field glasses, two wrist watch straps, and 30 packs of cigarettes.

Besides being a Marine first, a journalist second—Pete's stocky shoulders are burdened with regulation combat pack, entrenching tools, gas mask, canteen, sheath knife, first aid kit, and light carbine with cartridge belt for four clips of ammunition.

At a moment like this, for combat correspondent Zurlinden, the sword becomes a helluva lot mightier than the typewriter which he would gladly trade just now for a handful of grenades. . . .

Salt Water Queers Mechanism of Gun

However, he carefully unlimbers the carbine which up to this time—and much to his chagrin—he has not had occasion to fire. He takes careful aim—being a good enough shot in boot camp a year ago to earn expert marksmanship—at the spot where he feels sure the Japs are concealed. He squeezes the trigger. Nothing happens. He tries again. The gun from three days of salt water exposure won't work.

This, thinks Pete Zurlinden, is the top-off! This is what he's been working all his life for—reporting on newspapers throughout Ohio since his first year at college, as sports writer, and finally AP correspondent at Annapolis—to die with a lot of stinking Japs on the beaches of Tarawa before he can begin to fulfill the greatest assignment of his 29 years.

That was the worst of it—lying off there in a tank lighter 48 hours while one of the deathless stories of history unfolded 1000 yards away.

Well, they couldn't blame a guy for trying. He thought he was pulling a fast one when he talked the lieutenant into taking him to the beach with his seven men and a half-track, 20 minutes after the initial assault wave. It was a good idea. They were to unload him on the beach.

He had a picture of himself writing furiously in a foxhole, taking time out only to empty his carbine. He never thought about getting hurt. He was mostly afraid of missing the story—of some other guys getting the newsbeat ahead of him—and of what General Denig, who formed the Combat Correspondents, and Captain Nopper would think of him if he failed.

It was just getting light at H plus 20 when the LST shoved off from the transport and an 8-inch shell from a Jap shore battery arched over to explode under the bow of the transport and give Pete his first eye-witness contact with the enemy.

At the rendezvous area Pete's LST circles with others in the early light as the first U. S. planes sweep over to begin such a continual and ceaseless bombardment of the atoll from planes and warships that Pete wonders in awe as smoke and debris fill the sky "how there can possibly be a human left alive on the place."

But there are Japs alive there—plenty of them.

Pete Sees First Wave Hit Beach

Following the first assault with its tankettes at proper intervals, Pete's lighter gets within range of the beach when "mortars and everything let go" and, peering through the spray-splashed grill of the lighter with his field glasses, Pete sees the first wave hit the shelf of reef of "bloody" Betio Beach and the men go into the water, some disappearing immediately, some with rifles held high wading ashore to sink into shell craters blown in the reef by our own bombardment, some to hang up on submerged barbed wire until they go down in the reddening water, all of them moving forward, forward to the last—until it makes Pete's throat swell with something indescribable and he forgets about writing or dying but only yells his lungs out with every other American out there because he isn't close enough to help. He doesn't see a man take a backward step.

A louder yell in his ear shouts "Shore battery!"

"Where?" Pete has time to say before the shell lands a few feet from them and explodes water over the lighter. All around the choppy turf is littered with sunken amphibious tractors as Pete's LST is ordered back to the rendezvous area until the pile-up on the reefs is cleared.

On the second attempt Pete sees the four tanks sunk in lighters off the beach, one of them he remembers with two machine guns sticking up out of the water, only now that the tide has receded there is a hand visible, still gripping the trigger.

Again they are ordered back from the chaos off the beach where boats are picking up swimming men and wounded, and again they return at one and one-half hour intervals. At the fifth try the beachmaster on the 600-foot pier orders them outside to anchor for the night.

Pete sleeps atop the half-track, interrupted once by a two-minute AA barrage from a battleship and occasional colorful bombardments of the Tarawa airport. At 4 a. m. something wakes him — a subconsciously heard "swishing sound" and Pete lands with both feet on the stomachs of two sleeping men as four deafening explosions 30 feet away bracket the lighter to spray it with water and shrapnel.

"Pardon me," says Pete casually, "Did I hurt you?"

It was the first appearance of "Reveille Joe"—the Jap bomber who always comes before daylight.

Bullet Jams Up Typewriter Keyboard

Another day of false starts follows. Twice they reach the pier to be ordered back. The sight of men still charging up the beach, shooting from the hip, to sprint up the sand and dive under the seawall, is maddening. At 4:30 they run in near the pier under heavy cross-fire where a Jap sniper is shooting from a derelict sampan. A bullet pings the helmet of the boy next to Pete.

"What happened?" says the boy, dazed, as they show him the dent in his helmet. He complains only of a headache.

Another Marine begs permission to shoot it out with the sniper and silences the sampan with a .50-caliber burst.

At nightfall the lighter is ordered to take wounded to a destroyer and again anchors for the night. Pete figures every newspaperman in the Pacific must have filed by now. His spirits hit bottom when the lighter breaks down a few yards from shore and has to await towing.

"Hell!" says Pete, "I got to write something!" He puts his typewriter on his knees and begins: "Tarawa, Nov. 22d"—but the words run in wavy lines. Hellsbells—even the typewriter won't work! Then he sees—a bullet hole in the case that bent the shift key. He doesn't know how it got there.

On shore at last Pete finds his outfit digging foxholes—amazed to see him alive since he is on their missing list. "Well scratch me off," is Pete's bitter reply as he goes out to hunt up stories. He learns to his gratification that his rival correspondent Jim Lucas hasn't been able to write a story yet either.

There's still a lot of sniping even during burial ceremonies but little attention is paid even by Pete who is busy gathering stories. It's reportorial curiosity that leads Pete into this uncleared spot on Betio Beach pinned down among the dead Japs.

When his carbine fails to fire, Pete reaches for a dead Marine's rifle and unloads a few clips at the trees with no effect except to draw bursts of fire from the Jap that spread a pattern over the bridge behind him. For an hour and a half he sprawls there until a machine gun company comes up to take cover behind a hummock. The Jap stops firing. Then Pete shoves up his rifle and the Jap answers for the last time. The U. S. machine gun wipes him out. "I thought you cleaned this place out," Pete yells to the Marines. They tell him they hadn't got in this area yet.

"Well, what the hell," says Pete, "it gives me another story."

So he writes ten stories before morning—in eight writing hours of the 24 on Tarawa! And, being a Marine, he doesn't expect a raise.

Truth About Soldier Vote Bill

THE SO-CALLED Green-Lucas "Soldier Vote" Bill, which is not an honest bill to facilitate soldier voting but a thoroughly dishonest measure to enable the New Deal Administration to control the next Presidential election, has the fatal defect of being BOTH unconstitutional and immoral.

It is unconstitutional, because the CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES clearly and specifically gives EXCLUSIVE CONTROL OF BALLOTS TO THE STATES, and in NO circumstances and for NO purpose permits FEDERAL CONTROL.

Of course the New Deal is perfectly willing to ignore and violate the Constitution.

But the American people surely expect an American Congress to have respect for and adhere to the basic law of the land. And the basic law in this situation is absolutely incontrovertible.

Congress cannot by itself legally amend the Constitution. It can only PROPOSE an amendment to the States which have the sole power of ratification.

Being palpably and purposely unconstitutional, the Green-Lucas Bill is flagrantly and shamefully immoral—because every Federal officer implicated, including the President and every member of Congress, is pledged by oath of office to UPHOLD the Constitution.

But it is immoral by many other tests.

It is immoral because it conspires against the democratic institutions and processes of the nation in order to prolong the New Deal regime for at least sixteen years and to perpetuate it if possible.

It is immoral in its most devastating sense because it would entrust the complete control, including the actual physical handling, of millions of votes to a Federal ballot commission, which will have a majority of its members designated by the New Deal Administration and appointed by President Roosevelt—and PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WILL BE A CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIMSELF.

HOW COULD there be any public faith in the impartiality, fairness and honesty of an election ILLEGALLY conducted, and in which the preparation of ballots, the distribution of ballots and the collection of ballots were processes exclusively controlled by the appointees and minions of a Presidential candidate whose political fate depends upon the result of the election?

Even if the American people could be assured of the absolute integrity of the New Deal in such a situation, the suggested process would still be unthinkable.

But the American people should have no illusions about the political integrity of the New Deal.

This is the same New Deal which played politics with human want and misery so flagrantly and regimented the WPA for its own political advantage and power so boldly and ruthlessly that an outraged Congress was finally compelled to restrain it by enactment of the Hatch Act forbidding "PERNICIOUS POLITICAL ACTIVITY BY FEDERAL EMPLOYES."

And contrived, through its Agricultural Adjustment Administration, to have long-withheld farmers' benefit checks appear in millions of rural mail boxes throughout the country A FEW DAYS BEFORE AN ELECTION.

The propensity of the New Deal for accomplishing its ends and enhancing its power and especially for prolonging its life by trickery is well known. It will be confronted in the forthcoming Presidential election by the most serious threat to its powers and longevity in its history.

In fact, it is well aware that it can only win by trickery.

And the unconstitutional and immoral Green-Lucas Bill is the unsavory fruit of that awareness.

The simple truth in the present situation is that the New Deal Administration, while pretending to be concerned about soldiers losing their votes, is really and most deeply concerned about LOSING THE ELECTION.

The only orderly and honest way to let soldiers vote is through the customary State control of the ballot.

More soldiers will be enabled to vote that way than any other way.

It is the only constitutional way.

Lax and Lazy Parents

FATHER FLANAGAN, famous founder of Boys Town, says irresponsible parents are largely to blame for America's juvenile delinquency problem.

Recently Father Flanagan told a Boston audience:

"Sixty-five per cent of Americans do not go to church and this failure on their part makes it a miracle that delinquency is not even more widespread than it is."

Of course the distinguished priest is right. Children look to their parents for good example and the fathers and mothers who fail to provide it not only disillusion the young minds entrusted to their care but actually direct them towards crime.

The person who wants to rear a good citizen should begin by making himself a good citizen.

Say thou dost love me, love me,
Toll the silver utterance!
Only including, dear?
To love me also in silence
With thy soul.
—ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

WHY do women want the words "I love you" so often repeated? Is it to flatter their vanity, build up their confidence or still their fears? The research of our Horses & Women Department indicates that in single women it is first to build up their confidence, and second to flatter their vanity. In married women it is to still their fears . . . "Reading maketh a full man," said Bacon. But as I have observed before, "full of what?" I have just been reading an astrological prediction as to what is going to happen to Leos. It says: "Leos may have the chance of a lifetime." I can't think what it could be. If it has to do with money I could use it.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—What kind of a celebrity was the man or woman who had the unusual name of Honey Melody? A—Honey Melody was a boxer, a middleweight I believe, who was active around 1910. Never saw him fight but I have heard he was very good. Q—Who is your favorite foreign news commentator? A—I like John Gunther! Q—Did some subscriber ask you for "a man's angle" on evening gowns and didn't you say you "liked any evening gown as long as it was black?" A—Believe I did. I noted in the recent news story of the opening of the Metropolitan Opera in New York and the accompanying photos that the most photographed woman present was one who wore a black satin evening gown.

SMOKERS. When Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt got together, all three types of smokers were represented—cigars, cigarettes and pipes. In a business or diplomatic conference the pipe smoker has an advantage. He can't talk unless he takes his pipe from his mouth. Taking his pipe from his mouth gives him a chance to think and also prevents him from speaking too hastily. Even if you are a cigarette or cigar smoker the next time you go into a conference to talk a deal, try smoking a pipe.

HATS: The cap or hat the WACS wear looks all right to me but I am continually hearing it severely criticized by feminine observers. It would seem that whoever designed the WAC uniform didn't understand women. With a snappy chapeau a female is happy; with a drab bit of headgear she is miserable. That is elementary. Perhaps it is not too late to give the WACS a really feminine hat. It could increase enlistments. Incidentally, I am told by experts that the hat of the WAVES is an attraction to women.

PASSING BY: Taffy O'Toole, Chanteuse and danseuse. Miss O'Toole was about the quaintest and easiest to remember name in the entertainment field . . . Ina Ray Hutton, Bandleader and Blonde Bombshell No. 82. The late Jean Harlow was Blonde Bombshell No. 1. Ina recently married one of the members of her band. An interesting article might be titled "Men Who Married the Boss. And Did They Live Happily Ever After?" . . . Lieut. Harry Paul Rosen. Of the U. S. Army. Lieut. Rosen's experience has been unusual in two ways. First, his draft number was 158, the first drawn from the bowl in October, 1940. Second, he has been stationed at Attu and Kiska and managed to get a furlough. Most of the troops on that front have been there a couple of years with not one chance for a trip home. And it isn't so far from home by air, either.

SIDELIGHTS: Tokyo has a population of more than seven million, but the city has no system of numbering houses. Somebody should have published a popular priced guide book to Tokyo in English. This would have made a goodbook to include in the Christmas presents of the boys in the Southwest Pacific . . . Am informed steak is plentiful in Chicago. Many of the restaurants then provide bags so patrons can take their steak bones home to their pups. I am glad our pup can't read. He would be jealous of the Chicago dogs. All he gets is goat meat . . . A British court has ruled that any money a wife saves from her housekeeping allowance belongs to her husband and must be returned to him. Those British husbands seem to still have the matrimonial situation well in hand . . . The great professional football classic of the past was the game between Canton, O., and Massilon, O. Now neither of those towns has a team but I don't know why.

FANCY FACTS: Eleanor Woolvertin, who is quite a fancy fact expert, says: "Did you know that the United States Congress once adjourned to see a horse race in 1877?" No, Eleanor, I didn't know that. Your statement interests me. What race was it? Who won? What did he pay to win! Was the show price good? Eleanor also asks: "Do you know that half the people of the world drink goats' milk?" Well, I guess I'll have to blush a few blushes. I didn't know that, either. It is too bad my dog can't read. He would be interested in that goats' milk item.

PRODIGY: We should have a picture of the heroine of this story. According to her very proud Mama, Carole Marie Colibret of Chicago, aged 3, puts out the milk bottles every morning, helps with the dishes, sweeps the floor, has her own laundry corner where she washes her doll clothes, turns on the radio to the programs she likes, tries to read the National Geographic Magazine and sings a wide variety of popular songs while her mother plays a guitar accompaniment.

HONEY: There's money in honey. That would make a good slogan. Anyway, there really is money in honey as a lot is needed for the manufacture of face and hand lotions. Maybe you could raise some bees in your backyard. That might make the neighbors nervous though. A man living in Long Beach, Cal., once told me he was getting "a little nervous" as a woman in the neighborhood who kept snakes for pets had just bought several cobras.

ASIDES: "Good Eyesight" by Dr. John Ross and Dr. John Reihner of Plymouth, Mich., is another book that has helped many a young fellow pass the eye tests of the armed forces after once failing to do so . . . Am very fond of listening to Negro spirituals but only the Fisk Jubilee Singers seem able to do them full justice . . . Joe Miller of Chicago's "885 Club" refers to his establishment as "one of the six best eating places in the world." Joe didn't name the other five.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—I don't blame Ruth Gordon for starting another play—and soon. Her first, "Over 21," is a smash hit and the movies are bidding like mad to get it.

The latest news is that Metro and Columbia are neck and neck in the bidding. MGM wants it for Katie Hepburn and Columbia for Rosalind Russell. The asking price for the movie rights is $250,000. And all along I had thought it would go to 20th Century-Fox because there is some good old 20th money in the stage production.

At first there was a lot of talk that Ruth's husband, Garson Kanin, who was a brilliant producer and writer before going into the Army, had helped write "Over 21." But that has been loudly denied, with Ruth taking the authorship bows alone.

IT WAS BOUND to happen, and here it is: "Meet Miss Bobby Socks" will be a Columbia movie with Irving Briskin turning over the musical production to Ted Richmond. Naturally it's about the jives, the jumps and the Sinatra-swooners and it will feature Bob Haymes, who is Columbia's answer to Dick Haymes, who is 20th's answer to Frank Sinatra! Also in the cast will be a pretty little girl, Pat Parrish, former Los Angeles model, who will probably be "Miss Bobby Socks" herself.

THE PARTY Grace Moore and Valentin Parera gave in the private room of the Stork Club following Grace's appearance in "La Tosca" was a touch of the real old Hollywood with all its one-time glamour. There was Gloria Swanson, who looks so young it doesn't seem possible she will be a grandmother any day. Young Gloria is expecting the stork soon. Mary Pickford was there with Jessica and Dick Barthelmess, and Dick looked so handsome in his Navy uniform. Jeanette MacDonald, Gladys Swarthout, Anita Loos, the Lawrence Tibbets, the Fritz Kreislers and so many other interesting people gathered around to congratulate Grace. Although I only stopped in for a minute I couldn't help but think how well all of these girls look whose names have made history on the screen.

BILLY ROSE came in and sat with us the other evening after we had seen "Carmen Jones," which is as colorful and entertaining as everyone says. He told me he had just received a telegram from Billie Burke thanking him in her name and in the name of her daughter for keeping the name Ziegfeld on the old Ziegfeld Theater he has bought. His opening play at this theater will be "Seven Lively Arts," which he says is very different. I asked if there was much "temperament" displayed in the "Jones" play because of its large cast. He said none at all. "In fact," he said, "there is less than in any show I have ever produced."

EDITH HEAD, Paramount designer here from Hollywood, has been as busy as a bee arranging a fashion show in New York for "Lady in the Dark." That picture is really a joy to the eye and is an innovation in camera effects and color. Another job Edith has done while here is deck out Phyllis Brooks, who is also here for the picture. Phyllis walked into a night club the other eve carrying a muff made of white carnations and a hat to match. She said it had been designed and made in good old Hollywood. Phyllis, by the way, is still talking of going back to the South Pacific, where she and Gary Cooper did such a grand job entertaining the servicemen.

A LINE OR TWO: Chill Wills, the tall, redhaired Texas comedian, is blushing to the roots of his hair. He's been getting all the pin-up mail addressed to curvaceous model Chili Williams . . . Joe Pasternak is so hepped about the preview of "Two Sisters and a Sailor" that he's planning a sequel with June Allyson and Gloria De Haven. Why stop with one sequel? Why not "Two Sisters and a Marine" or "Two Sisters on a Commando Raid?" . . . The two musicians, Alexander Tansman and Charles Previn, who did such an excellent job of scoring "Flesh and Fantasy," have been signed by David Selznick to score "Since You Went Away" . . . Major Sy Bartlett, the first American to drop a bomb over Berlin, accompanied his wife, Ellen Drew, to the preview of her movie, "The Imposter," with Jean Gabin. Hear Ellen is very good, but I wonder what a major, who has been in the thick of things, thinks about a make-believe war film? . . . Mary Astor had to turn down Eddie Goulding's invitation to play a role in the Joan Crawford movie. Her health won't permit.

SNAPSHOTS OF NEW YORK AND HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Canadian censors won't want to pass "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" because Betty Hutton has sextuplets and they feel it's insulting to Papa Dionne; Irving Asher, just back from India, where he was on Lord Louis Mountbatten's staff. He's headed for the Coast to see his wife, the former Laura La Plante, and children; Harold Rose of the Selznick agency was called to New York by the death of his father; Wendy Barrie and the old love are togeither again. He gifted her with a mink coat and she's as happy as can be.

THE PRETTY GIRL with Johnny Meyers was Buff Cobb Chapman, Irvin S. Cobb's granddaughter and daughter of Buff Cobb and Frank Chapman. She's as cute as can be; Freddie Brisson (Roz Russell's husband) is being transferred to Wasnington, permanently; the motion picture industry is honoring Charles Skouras, national chairman of the motion picture branch of the Fourth War Loan at a luncheon in New York today. The movies have raised more than their quota, which is something to be proud about. Everywhere I go I hear enthusiastic talk about the way the people are buying more and more bonds than ever before.

DOUBLEDAY, DORAN & CO., publishers, tossed a cocktail party at which I had a chance to meet all the members of this organization. "The Gay Illiterate" has sold 40,000 copies to date, which, they tell me, is a big sale for the first month. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, FEB. 7, 1944

NEW YORK, Sunday—Yesterday was an exciting day. I have seen coast defenses from Seattle, Wash., to San Diego, Cal., but I never had seen what is done to protect the Atlantic coastline.

At Gen. Jarman's headquarters a group of us saw the whole plan. We were told how he had started his organization, developing it till it reached a peak, and now was gradually seeing the system being used in other places.

With every new victory abroad the probability of an attack on our coast is lessened. Nevertheless, it is interesting to see what has been accomplished right around New York.

I WENT INTO the newspaper office which keeps many of these coast defense men in remote places informed on what is happening in the world once a week. I found that a board of newspaper publishers had given them an award as the best Army newspaper.

After leaving the headquarters we visited several of the installations—from searchlights to anti-aircraft batteries. There was a time when captive balloons were part of the defense. That is past, but I had seen those on the West Coast and know how they were operated.

A HALF HOUR at home, and I went with the Navy to see the merchant marine gun-crews in their headquarters in Brooklyn. I was glad to meet the whole crew of a battleship, four of whom had come to see me in Washington.

I pinned on medals and handed out commendations to some of the men at a very formal ceremony, and was particularly glad to have this opportunity of seeing so many of them who are in port waiting for their next assignment.

in Rigoletto, only latterly mentioning that he was a meat cutter for Blackstone M. & M. Beef Co.

Sergt. John A. Benn of 264 Broadway st., Arlington, said: "I'd like to catch a street car to Medford and see Bessie Smyth." (He's just gotten letter No. 98.) Sergt. Jack Abbott of 8 Beals st., Dorchester, an ex-bartender at Lindy's, saw home as the Donohue family with whom he lives, and the boys of St. Joseph's Total Abstinence Society, where he played basketball and palled with Art Tomane and Larry Cuddy (nephew of the late "Bill").

Long for Friends

Corp. Fred B. D'More of 1107 Columbus ave., Roxbury, thought of the wedding picture which he has just received from his wife Rose (Carbone), his 37 Christmas packages and his job with Patsy in the cobbler shop.

Sergt. Matthew C. Mulholland of 38 Vine st., Roxbury, said: "I'd like to be pushing the doorbell at Danbury rd., Hyde Park, and have Dorothy Hocknell answer it." Then he wanted to be back training the Garrity All Stars in the Municipal Football League. Staff Sergt. Sidney Levison of 540 Warren st. mentioned his accountant's job and a brother (Dr.) in the First Civil Service District.

Some of these men, all of whom have passed the gruelling tests aimed at weeding out the unfit and unqualified, were shy about personal matters, others uninhibited. But each came to this gathering of his own wish, and on his own time, and never by official order. They wanted to talk Boston, or wherever is that favored patch of land and lid of sky.

Pfc. Henry Handelman of 91 Esmond st., Dorchester, thought of the West End House and the Brandies Club whose news pamphlets he gets. But it remained for his pals to tell about his Silver Star, awarded (censored).

And Pvt. Will F. Davidson of 379 Walnut st., Cambridge, found it ironic that he had been a member of the Cambridge Fire Department, yet carried, of all things, a flame thrower at the landing on Oran.

And Sergt. Mike T. Calirl of 39 Elmdale st., Dorchester, talked about days in R. H. White's rug department and fishing with Frank Gadman. While Corp. Edward M. Snarsky of 741 North Montello st., Brockton, a husky lad, remembered football, the autumn days with Brockton High in '35, under Alton Johngren, and the auto races at Brockton Fair, and Eddie Mottau in the Barber welting room.

Nick J. Yarose of 48 Garden st., Boston, an ex-stock clerk at Dorothy Muriel's, spoke of his brothers, Walter and Stanley, in the service, and the fruit cake his sister sent.

Pet Peeves

The writer, having been a soldier, knows that all of these had pet peeves—both real and fancied. But rarely in these groups has any boy teed off on a private gripe. That subject they just let ride as a heritage of war. They hate the Army. They want to go home. And their unspoken attitude is "So what?" Don't talk "next war" to these gents!

So Sergt. Al C. Ferrante of 46 Hays st., Framingham, spoke of the times with the boys in Coburnville and how he saw Sam Muto over here, and the welcome, he gave the monthly bulletins of the Columbus Society. And Sergt. Paul M. Lysaght of 384 Harvard st., Dorchester, mentioned Frank Russo of the City Park champions and John Donovan in the Employer's Liability, where he was an office manager.

And lastly Sergt. Philip T. Bastable of 1109 Washington st., Attleboro, forgot that he had just been promoted from corporal, thought it darned nice of his dad to send the check that made his London leave possible. See what I mean?

Sergt. Al C. Ferrante Framingham

Pfc. Fred G. Wagner Roslindale

Nick J. Yarose Boston

Sergt. Mike T. Calari Dorchester

French Urged To Join Revolt

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Co. broadcast an appeal from the leader of the Haute Savoie patriots today urging all Frenchmen to rise against their German oppressors.

The appeal, repeated at intervals throughout the day, outlined a four-point program to be followed by French citizens. It urged those possessing arms to join French guerrilla bands, appealed to all French workers to strike, encouraged nationwide sabotage "without undue risks" and asked that records be made of the names and descriptions of members of the German-controlled militia and leading Vichy police figures.

Italy Jails Fiat Head, Fiermonte

BERN, Switzerland, Feb. 7 (AP)—A Swiss-Italian frontier dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Der Bund today reported the arrest of Sen. Giovanni Agnelli, founder of the Fiat automobile works and owner of Turin's newspaper, Stampa.

Others reported arrested by the puppet Italian government included Gen. Ambrogio Clerici, former aide de camp of King Victor Emmanuel, and a former boxing champion named Fiermonte.

(Fiermonte was not further identified. The boxer Enzo Fiermonte, divorced husband of the late Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, was last reported in Italy in 1941, making a movie based on his life in America).

Mrs. Sydney Beggs Loves USO Job

By BETTY ALDEN

AS THE CAPABLE HEAD of the library and games department of the USO Citizens' Committee, Mrs. Sydney Beggs of Lincoln has one of the liveliest and most gratifying wiunteer jobs in town.

For a year and a half she has commuted daily by train from Lincoln to her office in the beautiful Commonwealth ave. mansion of Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton which has been converted into Citizens' Committee headquarters.

Her job consists of running the book drive and collecting games to supply the steady stream of soldiers and sailors who beat a path to her desk with requests for reading material for their ships and day rooms. The turnover is very great and she is constantly on the alert for new donations to keep ahead of the demand.

Her flair for systematic organization is revealed in the way she has stored and catalogued the books according to groups so she can put her hand on volumes of Shakespeare, medicine, psychology, or mysteries, in a minutes' notice. The butler's pantry from which banquets used to be served to Boston's best at Mrs. Haughton's dinner table, china cabinet shelves and even the inside of the built-in refrigerator, are neatly filled with volumes, and the old wine cellar makes a fine storeroom for cards, games and books.

THE JOLLY and attractive Mrs. Beggs is a "Yankee and proud of it." Born Dorothy Damon in New York she grew up in Newton and attended Newton High. Is "very much ex-Smith '25" having attended college one semester, studied kindergarten at Ashley Hall and the Froebel League and taught in New York. She belongs to the Junior League.

Met her husband on a yachting party at Marblehead and shares his love of sailing and motoring. They have travelled through most of the U. S. A. and before the war enjoyed winter holidays at Nassau. With their five boys, the eldest of whom is 16, they have summered at both Marblehead and Oyster Harbors.

Says her job keeps her too busy for appointments with a hairdresser, so her cook shampoos her hair on Sunday. Wednesday will be her birthday and any surprise might occur such as last year when a couple of servicemen who had been coming regularly for books brought her a birthday cake and staged an impromptu party in her office.

One of her assistants is Mrs. Haughton's granddaughter, Mrs. Walter Reed, who volunteers all the time she can spare from her baby girl and Army husband. Their work abounds in human interest experiences and they particularly admire one earnest white haired couple, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gay, who come every afternoon to sort and tie up bundles of magazines.

WHEN THE SYMPHONY is on tour this Friday, Boris Goldovsky, conductor of the Symphony luncheons will offer an interesting piano program following luncheon in the Copley Plaza Oval Room.

MRS. SYDNEY BEGGS—Efficiently directs USO library and games department.

"Iwuz thinkin'...."

by Izzy Ort

Well here I am, on me way to Miami—stopping off at Washington, to say hello to the "biggies" and will not tell them how to win the war—and dis is jess erbout da last time I iz gonna ask yer, "DID YOU BUY DAT EXTRA BOND YET?" Remember, if each of our boys killed one Jap apiece an den decided to quit and come home, we never wud win da war, and dat's sumthin to remember when ya get a temptation to say to yerself, "I jess bot a Bond last month, dat's enuff fer a while!" . . . Ya kno, I'd be rich if I had a dime fer every time a defense worker or a feller or gal in the service collared me in me Grille and came forth wid verbose and enthoosiastick conversation to wit: "Izzy, old pal, youse don't kno how much we guys and gals in da service and on da swing shifts appresheate yer Grille, wid dance music goin' all afternoon, and praktikally continuous entertainment witch amounts to one swell matinee. Coz erlotta us kids like ter jitterbug and see sum good shows, and don't git much time fer it at night. Ya kin bet dat woids like dat fill yers trooly wid real pride, and makes me happy ter think I iz of service to da boys and gals. Don't fergit, fer a heckuva swell time, AFTERNOON or EVENINING, come to me No. 25 Essex St. Grille. Advt.

Tonight

OPERA HOUSE — VINCENT YOUMANS' BALLET REVUE with music of the immortal Rimsky-Korsakoff, Maurice Ravel and the Cuban composer, Ernesto Lecuona built around two ballets by Leonide Massine and Eugene Van Grona. The principals are Olga Coelho, Brazilian soprano; Nestor Chayres, young Mexican tenor hailed as "a young Caruso"; John Sebastian, harmonica virtuoso who was recently guest soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra; Alexander Iolas, Kathryn Lee, Ivan Kirov, Diana Gary, Katia Geleznova, David Ahdar, Jean Guelis and Toni and Mimi Worth.

Continuing

PLYMOUTH — "JACOBOWSKY AND THE COLONEL," Franz Werfel's thoughtful, yet highly amusing, new comedy which the Theater Guild is presenting in association with Jack H. Skirball, goes into its second and final week tonight. There are excellent performances by Louis Calhern, Annabella, Oscar Karlweiss, J. Edward Bromberg and others under Elia Kazan's skilled direction.

SHUBERT—"ROSALINDA," the Johann Strauss musical hit, tonight enters the third week of its limited engagement. The New Opera Company production, which came here direct from a two-season New York run, has more than duplicated its Broadway success. The company of 100 is headed by Dorothy Sarnoff, Ralph Herbert, Virginia MacWatters. Everett West, Edward J. Lambert, Alexander Ivo, Paul Best, Gene Barry, Louise Kirtland, Larry Bolton and Jean Merrill. Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

COPLEY—"THE FAMILY CARNOVSKY," starring Maurice Schwartz in his own production of L J. Singer's topical drama, the first anti-Nazi work to come out of the Yiddish Art Theater. Saturday and Sunday matinees and a Sunday evening performance in addition to the nightly performances.

February 17

PLYMOUTH—"THANK YOU, SVOBODA," a comedy drama by E. B. Kraft starring Sam Jaffe, is the second alliance of this star comedian and author, the first the Broadway success of several seasons ago, "Cafe Crown." The cast includes Whitford Kane, Francis Compton, Arnold Korff, Frank Conlan, Adrienne Gessner, John McGovern and Edward D'Orze. Milton Baron is the play's producer; Samuel Love, its set designer and Playwright Kraft its director.

February 28

COLONIAL—"JANIE," Brock Pemberton's Broadway comedy hit, has just been booked into the popular Boylston st. playhouse, with its present cast intact.

March 7

SHUBERT — "FOLLOW THE GIRLS," a musical with a Navy theme, a book by Guy Bolton and Eddie Davis and a score by Charig, Pascal and Shapiro, stars Irina Baronova, Gertrude Neisser and Frank Parker and features Jackie Gleason, Buster West, Lucille Page and Tim Herbert. Dave Wolper is the producer in association with Al Borde.

War Bond Premiere At Keith's Tonight

Tonight at 9:30, in connection with the Fourth War Loan drive, Keith Memorial Theater is holding a special premiere showing of RKO Radio's "Tender Comrade," starring Ginger Rogers, Robert Ryan and Ruth Hussey. Admission will be by bond purchase only for this single showing.

Double Rites for Hunger Victims

NORTHAMPTON, Feb. 7 — Double funeral services will be held tomorrow in the West Cummington Congregational Church at 2 p. m., for Wilbur J. Starks, 81, and his wife, Cora, 77, who died at Cooley Dickinson Hospital a few hours after they were found unconscious in their unheated home.

Medical Examiner Thomas E. Corriden said the elderly couple died of starvation, exposure and pneumonia.

According to police the elderly couple apparently had been too ill to feed themselves and maintain fires, and Starks drove away neighbors when they offered help.

Quick Trick for Good Hair Grooming

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

TO BE ATTRACTIVE . . . hair must be without a flaw . . . full of life, lustre and elasticity . . . and if you dislike drab, grey-streaked locks . . . because they make you look older than you really are . . . you'll love a quick makeup trick that takes only a few seconds to apply . . . and does a smooth and elegant job of temporary camouflage . . . affecting true hair beauty. Lovely Universal Star Deanna Durbin poses.

HAIR CAN BE what you make it . . . hair that's like the sunlit gold . . . or black and glossy as a raven's wing . . . or lit with fiery red. Nothing is more exciting than brilliant, colorful hair . . . glowing with the sheen of perfect health.

Fresh, clean, well-groomed hair is eternally appealing. Whether it's heaven's gift to you . . . or the clever art of your hair coloring . . . there may come a time when stealthy streaks of grey . . . or discoloration near the roots . . . can spoil your day . . . that is, unless you have a quick make-up trick that takes only a few seconds to apply . . . and does a smooth and elegant job of temporary camouflage.

Perhaps you are a business woman . . . or a career girl . . . or a housewife, young and gay in spirit . . . and a youthful face is mighty important to you in whatever job engages your talents and attention . . . you need your hair to be as firm and uniform in color as it was when years were few.

Your hair is not a useless appendage . . . but a living, breathing part of you . . . and deserves the same care you give your skin and teeth.

GIVES HAIR SLEEK APPEARANCE

So make up your hair as you do your face. Make it up with a jumbo pencil stick . . . which comes in six shades . . . blonde, light brown, medium brown, dark brown, auburn or black . . . and give your head that sleek, uniform-colored appearance so necessary to good grooming.

To cover streaks of white or grey hair . . . or dull, listless-looking faded hair . . . and to bring out the lustre of your natural tresses . . . moisten the tip of this handy, easy-to-hold pencil . . . product of a famous sister firm of hair specialists . . . and apply to the affected areas.

A more effective way is to wet a mascara brush in lukewarm water . . . stroke it several times over the top of the pencil . . . and apply to your hair . . . the effect is much smoother, I find. Then brush the hair and the color will distribute itself.

This is not a dye . . . but a temporary camouflage . . . which can be easily removed with your next shampoo.

For the name of this effective hair counterpart to beauty, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, except the week-end, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IT'S A BANANA-ROYAL . . . this banana-colored flannel two-piece suit with matching topcoat . . . as luscious as the ice cream dessert itself. The skirt is straight with a front crossover . . . curved at the hem to match the curve of the jacket . . . smart detail. Inserts of dark brown wool in narrow bands and ending in an arrow . . . add a new note to the design of jacket and coat . . . which hangs in a loose, straight line . . . Very fashionable indeed is the outfit as modeled by RKO star Anne Shirley. R. M.

Tasty Shortcake

By MARTHA LEE

MIDWINTER is the time when energies are low and spirits are apt to droop, so it's up to the home menu-planner to give extra special thought to taste appeal and eye appeal as well as nutrition.

One way to tempt lagging appetites is to serve quick-frozen vegetables. If you learn a few tricks about "stretching" you can enjoy their country-fresh flavor frequently without upsetting the family's ration budget.

Shortcake technique is a particularly savory method of stretching the deliciousness of quick-frozen vegetables into extra servings. A box of green beans, for example, served with a flavorsome sauce, ½ dozen medium-sized onions (or 15 small white ones), shortcake biscuits, cheese and seasoning, makes six generous servings.

GREEN BEAN AND ONION SHORTCAKE

1 pkg. (10 oz.) quick-frozen green beans, cooked
2½ tbsp. fat
2½ tbsp. flour
¾ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
2 1-3 cups bean stock and milk
1-3 cup grated American cheese
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ doz. medium-sized onions, cooked
6 or 6 shortcake biscuits

Cook frozen green beans according to directions on package. Drain, reserving stock. Melt fat in saucepan; add flour, salt and pepper, and blend. Add bean stock and milk gradually and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese, Worcestershire sauce, cooked beans and onions. Reheat. Serve with shortcake biscuits. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

When making the shortcake biscuits add 1 teaspoon of curry powder or celery seed to the flour mixture. Roll dough into 6 or 7-inch disc and cut in 5 or 6 wedges. Bake as usual.

SHORTCAKE DOUGH

3 cups sifted flour
4½ tsp. baking powder
⅔ tsp salt
1 tbsp. sugar
½ cup shortening
¾ cup milk (about)
2 tbsp. softened butter or margarine

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives. Stir in milk gradually, mixing just enough to make a smooth dough. Divide dough in half. Pat one-half in seven-inch pan, spread with butter, and put other half, patted to fit, on top. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Place on baking sheet and bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) about 12 to 15 minutes. Makes six servings.

A substantial salad made with frozen vegetables is another popular mid-winter treat that has appetite appeal. Be sure to drain the vegetables carefully before mixing with the dressing. It's important, too, to wash lettuce well ahead of time and crisp by chilling. A bag made of cheesecloth is one good way to assure dry salad greens. Just shake them about in the bag until all water has absorbed.

GREEN BEAN SALAD

1 box (10 oz.) quick-frozen green beans
1 cup boiling water, salted
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
2 tbsp. olive oil
2 tbsp. chopped onion
½ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. sugar

Drop frozen green beans into briskly boiling salted water, bring again to a boil, and boil 8 to 12 minutes, or until just tender. Drain. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over beans. Chill. Serve on crisp lettuce. Makes 4 servings.

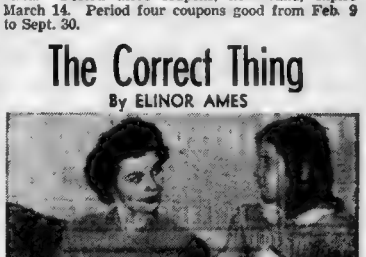
The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES



POLITE INTEREST—You'll pay attention to an adult's request, "Look at this!" . . . then don't ignore a child's wish to share her interests with you!

Draws the Line

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—I'm 22 years old, my husband is 30. We've been married seven years and have a child of six. Our home life has been very happy until about a month ago when my husband started going out with one of the girls who works in the same defense plant where he is employed. It seems all the men do the same thing, so he had to go with the crowd.

He denies that he spends money on this girl, but he will never take me any place, and spends his off time in a beer parlor with his men friends, and they meet the girls there.

I think he still loves me and I love him very much. I'm willing to share anything, but I draw the line when it comes to sharing my husband—W. W.

Matrimonial chaos is one of the results of war.

You tell me your husband goes out with girls who are employed in the same defense plant, and that all the men do the same thing. Don't you think, all said and done, that it's only a case of keeping up with the Joneses romantically speaking?

I'll agree, it's pretty tough on the little woman who keeps house well and takes care of the children, not to be able to call on her husband for an occasional movie or restaurant treat. Don't nag, try and plead your cause when he's in good humor. Any fair to middling husband will take his wife to a movie.

Yokes on Dresses, Suits

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THERE will be a rush to wear a yoke this spring, among the untrammeled women who make a life work of being free. That's what the fashion folk predict. They are backing this prophecy with dresses and suits and coats, all with yokes, and they expect them to be an important mass style.

Miss Dulin has sketched a suit with this yoke feature, this time done in contrasting color so you can't miss it. The suit is pale gray wool, and its yoke is white wool, with lapels that button back onto the yoke. White cuffs on the sleeves also button. The skirt has a front panel that gives it a nice, easy movement.

The model is from Edward Stevenson, one of Hollywood's star designers.

Broadway

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—The Al ("Li'l Abner") Capps have their set head-wagging . . . Connie Bosweli's physicians have ordered her to take six weeks' rest . . . Decca has a new idea which it'll promote heavily: Recordings of love scenes from Broadway shows, played by the original casts . . . More ramifications expected in the Tony Martin case . . . The Soviet Consul is entertaining a large group at the "Three Russian Girls" premiere . . . Erle (Journal - American) Strohl and Peggy Marlowe, the titian-tressed girl are honeymooning. Judge Pecora tied the knot . . . Singer Jerry Wayne's radio faux pas is drawing howls from the Main Stemmers . . . A well known cafe society lad is carrying an easily visible torch for the recently wed Lady Stanley, formerly Silvia Fairbanks . . . Peggy Hopkins Joyce is fuming because Cornelius Vanderbilt referred to her as "aging."

THE CHOIR at "Winged Victory" spends more time singing at hospital bases, camps and bond rallies than onstage at the 44th St. . . . Sunny O'Dea of "Wallflower" is sighing over Charles Simon . . . Has anyone noticed that both the motion pictures Ted Lewis made were called "Is Everybody Happy?" . . . Benny Goodman's new drummer is a 17-year-old Forest Hills youngster, Bob Feld . . . The John Jacob Astor-Mary Alice Rice romance has hit the canvas . . . the girl driving the flashy cream-colored car enameled "Gene Krupa" around the Broadway area is Carol Bruce . . . Phyllis Ayres, the strip teaser, won a motion picture theater in a Cleveland crap game . . . Pvt. James McKinley Bryant is now in California Army camp . . . June Havoc's success in "Mexican Hayride" has had an unique result: the movie studios are after Jane Keane, the "Early to Bed" comedienne, to play the June Havoc roles they wouldn't hire June Havoc for a few months ago . . . Bing Crosby's recent pictures without his toupee have caused considerable grief at both NBC and Paramount Pictures press desks.

IS IT TRUE that when Dave Kleckner was refused the license for his new Dave's Blue Room he had to sell the unopened restaurant for $5000, although he's sunk four times that much into it? . . . Don't you think Raymond Paige's orchestra is pretty snappy? . . . Has the Vinton Freedley-John Wildberg tiff been mended? . . . Is the Patrolman Drew case going to be revived? . . . Have you bought your extra War Bond this week?

DOES IT SLAY you to be told that Carmen Amaya, LaConga's flamenco dancer, ties a red ribbon to each of her toes before a performance—for good luck? . . . Could that "Carmen Jones" seating slipup that landed so much space in the local press actually have been a clever publicity stunt? . . . Don't you think the advertising posters for "Three a Family" are rather naughty? . . . Why hasn't there been a movie about the WAC? . . . Didn't "Pistol Packin' Mama" beat a hasty retreat from the Hit Parade, and aren't you happy?

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—Lana TURNER with blonde hair, but still as shapely as ever, is at work in "Marriage Is a Private Affair." Lana is a "sweater girl" who doesn't need a sweater to be recognized as a "sweater girl."

Lana Turner

Lana is recording a song, "Honeysuckle Rose," for this picture and she stands in front of the bandstand wearing a shirt and a blouse and a bow tie. "I thought I'd sing the number as Frank Sinatra," says Lana. And the musicians, to push the gag along, are wearing bobby socks.

Of course, Lana and the orchestra will not be attired in this fashion in the picture. This is just for the recording and laughs. Lana, when she does the song to the playback for the picture, will be wearing a dress that will have all the values of a sweater.

On the set to watch Lana is Steve Crane, her husband. Steve now wants to be an actor, has already played a small role in "Since You Went Away," and is being considered by several studios for prominent roles.

IT APPEARS to be the fashion for married picture couples to watch the working member of the duet, for on the set of "The Hairy Ape" Hedy Lamarr, without a picture assignment, is looking at John Loder play a scene with Susan Hayward.

They are working late this night and Hedy sits in a chair while Loder does a scene with Susan over and over.

Finally a "take" is printed, the work is done, and Loder, as if they were all alone, says to Hedy: "Come on, mama, let's go home and go to bed."

CAROLE LANDIS and Pat O'Brien are getting ready to do a scene for "Pilebuck." Carole walks onto the set where O'Brien is waiting. It is their initial meeting in the picture.

"You two have worked together before, haven't you?" asks Director Eddie Sutherland. He wants to make certain that his leading lady and leading man know each other. Often a hero and heroine will go into a scene without being introduced to each other.

"We played in a picture together," says O'Brien. "It was called 'Women Are Like That.'"

"What's more," says Carole, "I remember my part perfectly. Shall we do it for him, Pat?"

O'Brien agrees. He makes an imaginary entrance and asks: "Where is my wife?"

Carole replies: "She went that way." There is a pause and Director Sutherland says: "Have you forgotten your lines?"

"No," answers Carole, "that was my entire part."

ON ANOTHER set Edward G. Robinson is in a G. I. uniform enacting the title role in "Mr. Winkle Goes to War." Between scenes and puffs of a cigar Robinson discusses his plans.

"After this picture is completed," he says, "I might turn producer and make my own picture. That is, if I can't find anyone who'll want to make it. It's a story about my favorite American. I want to play the role of Benjamin Franklin. Read carefully about Franklin and you'll find that he's strictly a modern."

We ask Edward G. if he is through with tough-guy roles.

"Not exactly," replied Robinson. "In fact, I'm sort of back at the old stand again. Compared to the Japs I knock off in this picture, Little Caesar was a piker."

The Curzon Line

By George E. Sokolsky

THE HEATED discussion over the boundaries of Poland in which our Allies, Soviet Russia and Poland are the principals, is only symptomatic of the grave dangers in our diplomacy of obeisance. Americans are not so much concerned as to whether the Russo-Polish line is to be that drawn by Lord Curzon in 1920, or that drawn by Ribbentrop and Molotov in 1939, or its extension into the oil fields of Galicia as indicated at this moment. What is important is that two of the United Nations are acting independently of the rest of the United Nations which makes a mockery of the entire business.

Apparently that was the view of Secretary Hull who offered both countries the good offices of the United States. This offer of friendly mediation by the United States which has already provided Soviet Russia with $3,887,874,000 of lend lease, Russia rejected. Russia also rejected Britain's views in the matter.

IT MAKES little difference to Americans which line is the correct one. The Russians, who have regularly rejected racial distinctions, now assert them as regards Poland, making the point that west of the Curzon line, the Poles are in the majority whereas east of it they are in the minority. White Russians and Ukrainians dividing that area with them. As all of Eastern Europe consists of mixtures of peoples and races, this discussion can continue until kingdom come without any hope of settlement.

When ethnology becomes the standard for boundary settlements, no settlement can ever take place because everywhere a majority and a minority will vie with each other to prove that they are vice versa. The Russians have suggested that the Poles can have East Prussia when they can get it, but if the Russians object to the Poles having territory which contains large numbers of Ukrainians, why give them territory which is now inhabited mostly by Germans?

BUT ALL THIS hardly concerns Americans. We do not, as a people, understand why two Allies cannot get together on a matter of a few miles—although some Poles say it will make a difference to Poland of about one-fifth of her population. What does concern us is that the same old miserable fight for bits of territory which wrecked the peace after the last war is starting all over again—and we are not being consulted.

When Secretary Hull offered his good offices he had a right to assume that the nations which met at Teheran would meet again to deal with the Russian-Polish boundary, not because the boundary made a whale of a difference, but because if there is to be a United Nations, it must function as a United Nations. He had a right to assume that Soviet Russia would not go off on her own the very first moment that a question within the United Nations group arose.

SUPPOSE the Russians are right. Why do they reject consultative association with the United States and Great Britain? Suppose Soviet Russia proved her point, is it not reasonable to assume that the United States would stand by her? Why then this insistence upon unilateral action?

That is the real issue in this Polish boundary case. Lots of rot is thrown in to confuse that issue. For instance, a correspondent writes me that Poland ought not to be defended because Poland has been more anti-Semitic than Russia. That has no relationship at all to the question, which is, why does not Russia recognize that all boundary questions must be jointly settled among the United Nations, or there will be a dozen little wars after this big one if finished? Or is it that the Russians don't care what happens as long as they get what they have set out to get? Americans are not fighting for that solution to the problems raised by this war.

Marshfield Fair Plans To Hold Race Meeting

By JACK CONWAY

MARSHFIELD FAIR will swing back into operation with running horse races and pari-mutuel betting this year, according to a statement made to this writer by President Charley Langille. It is planning to stage a six-day meeting which will open on Aug. 29 and go through Labor Day, Sept. 4.

Ernie Sparrell will co-operate with President Langille in giving Marshfield the finest fair it has had in its long history. There will be more exhibits than ever, while the better half-mile horses will be seen in action.

Charley Connors

Marshfield did not conduct a fair during 1943 on account of transportation restrictions. Brockton also called off its fair. Northampton and Great Barrington were able to operate, and each of these tracks staged successful meetings.

It is also likely that Brockton will hold a fair this year. This will enable the half-milers to race at Marshfield Brockton, Northampton and Great Barrington.

In Massachusetts, under the supervision of Messrs. Charley Connors, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and Harry Allen of the Racing Commission, the turf sport has been conducted on a high plane. The fair circuit has had the latest racing equipment and top officials. As a result, there has been excellent racing with the form horses scoring a high percentage of victories.

It will be good news to the horsemen to learn that Marshfield is returning to the half-mile field. It was at Marshfield that Russ Murray and Ernie Sparrell first introduced half-mile racing in Massachusetts. This type of racing has grown in popularity.

The record handles at Hialeah Park in Florida indicate that racing will have another big year. The half-mile tracks will receive their share of the spoils.

1000 Army Boxers

TOM SHEHAN, former Boston sports writer and turf official and now a staff correspondent for the official Army newspaper Yank, says 1000 Army boxers are taking part in the big tournament in Africa. Jack Sharkey will referee in the finals. Tom writes as follows:

"I have only recently returned from Italy where I spent five weeks scouting up stories for Yank. Consequently, I missed Jack Sharkey and Fred Corcoran both here and in Italy, but I expect to be here when they return next month.

"John Clift, boxing writer for the Stars & Stripes, tells me that Jack went over big when he refereed the Red Cross boxing bouts here. Jack also is scheduled to referee the finals of the Allied boxing championship here. The finals of the tournament, in which British, French and American boxers from all over this theater of war will compete, will be held here from Feb. 14 to 19.

"Clift, who is a brother to Gene Clift, sports editor of the Galveston News and wrote sports himself on the Daily Oklahoman and the Dallas Journal before he came into the Army, estimates that close to 1000 soldiers and sailors will fight before the championships are decided.

"The tourament, which is the brain child of Sergt. Al Weisberger, who promoted boxing around Cleveland and Oakland under the name of Al Warner, received its biggest impetus when Gen. Mark Clark announced that any members of his Fifth Army who qualified would be put on detached service, flown to a rest camp, and given an opportunity to train.

"I have seen some of the boxing here and it isn't bad. Most of the boys don't get much of an opportunity to train for the ordinary programs, but now that there is a championship tournament scheduled they will be able to get time to get themselves in shape.

"There is also a professional division in the tournament, but most of the pros are French. Marcel Cerdan, European welterweight champion, is the top entry. I haven't seen him fight yet, but Weisberger and some of the other experienced boxing men who have, told me that he compares very favorably with our pros.

Writes of Italy

"I SAW A lot of Italy in the short time we were there. A colonel was nice enough to assign a Dodge station wagon to us for the entire time we were there and we traveled into every nook and corner of Italy held by the United Nations.

"I am sorry that I wasn't able to check up on Andy Callahan's death while there. It was quite a shock to read of it in a small squib in the Stars & Stripes. He was a great fighter.

"We spent Christmas with newspaper friends in Naples and had such a good time there that we stayed over until New Year's. During our visit we ran into any number of Bostonians, including Lieut. Green of Malden, Lieut. Woodbridge of Winchester, and once again Al Pirani of Somerville, who came over on the boat with us. Al had a clipping of the column in which you mentioned my meeting him on the boat. It had been sent to him by friends in Somerville.

"If my photographer, Sergt. John Frano, and I are still here when Sharkey comes back, and we expect to be, I will have him do a layout on Jack and Fred Corcoran and send the pictures to you. We will try to get Africa and the Army into the background as much as possible.

"Incidentally, some of his wife's old friends sent Charley Duffy's wife a clip of the letter I wrote you, and which you reprinted in your column, mentioning him. Charley, who is a commander in the Navy, is out of town right now, but he will be back soon and I will show him your letter. Whenever I feel homesick and feel like talking about Boston, I go upstairs to his office and chew the fat with him for an hour or so. We come up with some real jackpots and it is nice to have somebody to talk about home with. Charley, as you know, was tops as a newspaperman in Boston and Washington.

"Wish Whitey Wilson all of the best for me."

"My wife forwarded me the clippings and I read some of Hy Hurwitz's articles on the action in the South Pacific. Hy is right in there seeing the war where he wanted to be. I always liked Hy.

"Remember me to Eddie Mack, Jack O'Brien, Bill MacAuley and the rest of the boys around town."

Ernie Dundee of Brockton faces Johnny Dougwillo of Lynn in the feature contest of eight rounds at the Lynn Arena tonight under the auspices of the Casino A. C. It will be a return match between this pair, Dundee scoring a knockout over the Lynn ringster at Woonsocket, R. I., when Dougwillo suffered a badly cut eye.

Coleman Now in Lead For B's Manager Post

By BILL GRIMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—After three days, President Bob Quinn hasn't any more idea concerning the identity of Casey Stengel's successor than he had before he left home, other than that Bill Dickey has been eliminated.

Gabby Hartnett would, according to his own admission, jump at a chance to get back into the National League as manager of the Braves.

Lefty O'Doul and Bill Sweeney have received tremendous build-ups on the Pacific Coast, as logical successors to "Ole Case." But, their records do not indicate that either of them would click in the National League. However, Bill Skiff, who hasn't been mentioned for the job, has been very successful at Seattle and might prove to be the dark horse who'll outrun the other boys down the stretch to the wire.

CASEY GETS CHECK

Of course, something may develop today but with Larry Gilbert, Earl Coombs, Bill Dickey, Bill Sweeney, Bill Meyers and Leo Hartnett counted out, Bob Coleman has the pole and is leading the field.

Casey Stengel has received his check for the stock he owned in the Braves. And, as we've stated time and again, Casey was the biggest stockholder in the club.

Headed by Max C. Meyer, the six stock holders who sold their Braves holdings to Louis Perini, C. Joeph Maney and Guido Rugo are in the market to purchase the Brooklyn Dodgers. They are Casey Stengel, Joe Conway, Dr. Bill Wrang, J. W. Powdrell and Francis Ouimet.

Due to some litigation, the Dodger stock must be cleared through the courts. But, the former Braves' owners have the inside track and, at this time, seem to be on their way to acquire the best franchise in the National League.

LANDIS STILL STRONG

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis may be getting old but he still retains all of his faculties . . . They say that Landis has too much power but there's no magnate with enough courage to start a move to strip him of any authority . . . He got a real going over, along with many other of the baseball big wigs, last night at the Baseball Writers' Association, New York Chapter, dinner . . . But, for the fact that Branch Rickey attempted to tell the War Department how to operate the trip, All Star clubs would have gone to Australia and the Pacific war theater last fall.

Overheard Joe Page, who has been in and around baseball as long as anyone, arguing with some minor league magnates about how much benefit the game had derived from Judges Landis and Bramham. He didn't pull any punches.

QUINN, PENNOCK DICKER

Buddy Hassett and "Ace" Williams, who were teammates with the Braves three years ago, came up from Chapel Hill, N. C., to get some baseball atmosphere . . . They informed me that Buddy Gremp, another former Brave, underwent an operation for his trick knee last summer and is now in grand physical condition . . . Casey Stengel still favors his bad leg but he has been on the go from morning until night.

Pres. Bob Quinn and General Manager Herb Pennock of the Phillies have been huddling frequently . . . It's a good guess that Eddie Joost has been the subject of their conversations . . . But, the Phillies haven't got what the Braves need, infielders . . . Bob Carpenter, the new owner of the Phillies, is a rabid baseball fan . . . But, he frankly admits that he doesn't know anything about the national pastime.

Pics Win, 10-4, Presented Cup

The Boston Olympics outskated the Brooklyn Crescents to a 10-4 win in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League game at Boston Garden. The game was played at a furious pace for the first two periods, but in the third, the undermanned Brooklynites weakened.

Bob Jeremiah, Andersen and Alan Stanley were the high scorers for the Olympics, each netting two goals.

Between the first two periods the Hershey Cup was presented to the Olympics for their play earlier in the season.

4 Wrestling Matches Scheduled Here

Four matches, topped off by the duration championship bout between Ed "Strangler" White, former University of Alabama grid star, and the Golden Terror, will make up the weekly wrestling program at the Arena under the direction of Promoter Paul Bowser Wednesday night.

In the semi-final, George Linehan will tangle with Jack Clayburn, while in the weekly special, Sando Szabo, West Coast titlist, will face Al Tucker. The opener pits Manuel Cortez against Dr. John "Drop-Kick" Murphy.

VIENNA, Mo., Feb. 7 (AP) — Rollie Hemsley, New York Yankee catcher, today said he "wasn't sure" whether he will play baseball this year.

"Things don't look so good, and besides, I have to protect my interests here. I haven't heard anything from the Yankees and haven't said anything to them either."

Nelson, Wood Ties In Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 7 (INS) —Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, and Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., were deadlocked with scores of 137 as they moved into the second half of the 72-hole Phoenix Open.

Back of the leaders with 141's were bracketed Sam Byrd, Jug McSpaden and Harry Cooper. Johnny Revolta, with a 76 yesterday, slipped back into sixth place after a hot 66 chucked him into an early lead in the opening round.

Whit Wyatt Sees Great Season Ahead

BUCHANAN, Ga., Feb. 7 (AP) —Whitlow Wyatt, Brooklyn Dodger pitcher, is looking forward to a great season — if the Army doesn't take its option first.

The lanky right-hander, busy on his 1015-acre farm said:

"I'm in great shape. That arm gave me a lot of trouble during the first of last season, but it's all right now."

Time to Honor Ryder, Producer of Champions

By HUCK FINNEGAN

JACK RYDER has produced the Sullivan award winner in Gilbert Dodds, and it would seem high time that an award of similar merit be given Jack Ryder. Few men in the U. S. have done more to further the cause of amateur athletics than the Boston College and BAA coach whose long list of champions includes world record holders Tom Halpin, Oscar Hedlund, Jack Driscoll, Harold Cutbill, Lloyd Hahn and myriad relay teams.

This is a lean year for Ryder. Instead of his customary squad of 100 at BC he has only four candidates—Herb McKenley, Ralph King, Bob O'Neil and Joe McDavitt. To enter a relay team at Millrose he had to impress McDavitt, a high jumper, into service as a quarter-miler.

Jack Ryder

And King was strictly a sprinter before entering the Heights. Dodds is the ENTIRE BAA team. Not one other candidate out for it.

You'd figure then that Ryder had little to do, perhaps two hours work each afternoon. But such is not the case. The veteran spends as much time at the track as he did in the halcyon days.

For one thing, Dodds has created so much track enthusiasm among Gordon College students that several trip to the Heights daily to work out with him.

Sam the Organist

THERE IS Music Director Sam Walters, who plays the organ in Roxbury's First Presbyterian Church. A 200-pounder, Sam came out just to watch Dodds. Then he started jogging for the exercise, found he was losing his "alderman" and kept it up. Now he's down to a trim 175. Further, where he used to wallow around the track like a walrus, he recently spun 300 in 43 seconds, the Army standard for the distance.

There are three other Gordon College boys who are developing fast. They are Karl Hislop, who attained some prominence in cross-country; Archie Martin who finished sixth in the Ft. Thomas, Ky.-Cincinnati six mile race Thanksgiving Day won by Dodds, and a slim, bespectacled lad named Donald Osbourne who won the handicap 1000 at the "Y" meet and finished second in the Malden mile Saturday.

Thus Ryder is training as many (more if Dodds is included) students from Gordon College as he is from BC.

Nor does he stop there. There is a Lieut. Henry Buckley (Coast Guard) who used to run for B. C. He placed behind Osbourne in the "Y" 1000. And Don Gibbons, a prospective champion from Huntington School. And the ever present relayists from B. C. High, Boston English, Mission High, et al. Ryder is never too busy to accommodate them, even to picking the runners for B. C. High's team.

And then the juveniles. Frank Monohan heads this list. Barely 14, he's been B. C.'s "mascot" for three years and has developed into a slick hurdler and pole vaulter. Robert Allard, a 12-year-old from Weeks Junior High, a husky who has the makings, and Marshall Reinstein, who hopes to make Newton High's team.

All these and more, so that Ryder's day is a full one. He doesn't get a quarter for his extra-curricular activities. Does it for the love of it and because he hasn't the heart to turn anybody away from his door. Many a time he has made a high school boy into a champion only to see him wind up at some institution other than B. C., like Jim Daley of Lowell, thee-time intercollegiate dash champion at Holy Cross, and Tommy Causen, another Crusader headner.

3 Entries, 3 Champs

YOU'D THINK a chap who's been around as long as Ryder (like Sheelan, 1907, was his first U. S. chanpion) would lose his enthusiasm or touch, wouldn't you?

Not Ryder. Last June, for example, he had only three men under his wing—Dodds, Herb McKenley and 17-year-old Ted Vogel He took them to the national championships at Randall's Island, and the result: metric mile championship for Dodds; junior national 400-meter championship (47.7) for McKenley; junior national 10,000-meter championship for Vogel. So, on the "Flowers for the Living" basis, it's time some award was given Ryder. His type doesn't appear more than once a century.

Tufts' time by quarters as it won by 20 yards over Tech, HC and BC at Millrose: Ray Southwick 53.9, Dick Smith 52.8, Ed Palmieri 52.3, Harry Drake 51.1 . . . Ralph King, BC leadoff, made the mistake of trying to pass Southwick on the corners, wound up with 56.2. BC was out of it thereafter . . . Tufts' Ted Sparrow won his heat in the hurdles, knocked himself and John Lennon out of the semi-finals when he tripped over the third hurdle.

Doug Taitt Set To Play Again

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 7 (AP)—Doug Taitt, veteran of nearly 20 years in organized baseball and former major leaguer, will wear a Portland uniform this season, Gen'l Mgr. Bill Klepper of the Pacific Coast League club said today.

Taitt, signed as an outfielder, recently received a medical discharge from Lowry Field, Denver. He broke into pro ball in 1925 with Los Angeles and subsequently played for Nashville, Boston Red Sox, Chicago White Sox, Atlanta, Philadelphia Phillies, Indianapolis Hollywood, Syracuse and Memphis.

Eastern Seeking Eighth Member

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Eastern Baseball League's "phantom" Springfield, Mass., franchise was placed in the hands of President Thomas Richardson together with full responsibility for finding the circuit's eighth member.

Springfield was declared vacant territory at the December meeting of the league when, according to baseball law, all the players became free agents and the circuit shrunk to seven active clubs.

Rescigno Rejected

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Xavier Rescigno, right-handed pitcher who won six and lost nine for the Pittsburgh Pirates last year, said he had undergone an Army examination yesterday and had been rejected. Rescigno, now 1-A, said he was told he would be reclassified 4-F.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

FLEAS? FLEAS ON MY DARLING SNIFFER? OH-HA-HA-HA-HA! HOW DROLL! WHY, I'VE NEVER SEEN A SINGLE FLEA ON HIM IN MY LIFE! AND BESIDES, 'OO HAD A BUBBLY-WUBBLY BATH JUST BEFORE 'OO CAME- DIDN'T 'OO SNIFFUM WIFFUMS DUMPLING?
NO? WELL WHAT HAS HE GOT—HORSE FLIES? I HAVEN'T BEEN BITING MYSELF AND THIS AIN'T POISON IVY!
THAT CRUMB-HOUND INVITED HIMSELF IN BED WITH ME LAST NIGHT. I GOT MORE BITES ON ME THAN A PICKLE HAS WARTS—
IF HE WAS MINE, I'TTLE SNIFFUM WIFFUMS WOULD GET A BUBBLY-WUBBLY BATH IN SHEEP DIP!
SOME WEEK-END. SOME FUN. AT LEAST THE FLEAS GOT A DECENT MEAL HERE. THAT'S MORE THAN YOU CAN SAY FOR THE REST OF US—
NOBODY HAD MORE FUN AT THE WEEK-END PARTY THAN THE PUP AND THE PALS HE BROUGHT WITH HIM.
THANK 'O JACK MAHANY SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

Bob Shelley Dies Suddenly

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP) — Robert S. Shelley, 43, racing secretary at Tropical Park, Miami, and Narragansett Park, died unexpectedly of a heart attack.

He formerly served as racing secretary at Arlington and Sportsman's parks, and at Havana's Oriental Park.

His father, William H. Shelley, is secretary at Churchill Downs, Louisville, and Lincoln Fields, Chicago, and a brother, William J. Shelley, has served as a racing official at various tracks for a number of years.

Survivors include the widow, a son, Robert, and a daughter, Dagmar. Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning.

Dooley Shocked At Shelley's Death

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 7—Judge James E. Dooley, president of Narragansett Park, was visibly shocked when he learned of the death of Racing Sec. Robert E. Shelley.

"Bob Shelley was one of the finest characters associated with Narragansett Park," he said. "He was an excellent racing secretary and did everything possible to bring the finest type of thoroughbreds to Rhode Island.

"I had a great fondness for him personally and am greatly grieved at his death. It was only a week ago we had talked about plans for the spring meeting of Narragansett Park in April, and I was looking forward to discussing our racing program with him the latter part of March."

Judge Dooley said he will discuss the matter of Shelley's successor with his directors early this week.

Charles A. Connors, chairman of the board at Narragansett, is at Miami and will represent the track at the funeral, which will also be attended by Announcer Horace Wade, Supt. James Linnehan, and "Bobby" Goldman of the publicity department, who are in Florida.

FORECASTING BALDNESS

This young man has a good head of hair and doesn't feel that he will ever be bald. Yet his scalp is laden with dandruff, itches constantly, and he loses a great deal of hair each day.

In a few years it will be too late, and his appearance will be permanently marred, a serious handicap to anyone. Don't let baldness come to you since scientific Warner treatment and proper care afterward can prevent it in most cases.

There is no charge or obligation for a private scalp examination and consultation.

Fees for treatment are very moderate and are payable as the treatments are taken—not in advance. There is a separate department for women.

Hours: Monday, Wednesday, Friday, 11 a. m. to 9:00 p. m. Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, 9:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m.

The Warner offices are located at Suite 320, Little Building, Corner of Boylston and Tremont Sts. Phone Hub. 1705
